What Did the Horses Do? In Canada They Mean It Cromwell, Milton, the S4 This Great Country

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

THE RACE TRACKS of Maryland decide that Harry Sinclair, who races horses, is not pure enough. He is barred.

Those that have studied intellectual faces that gather on the various race tracks, particularly in the betting ring, will agree that if a man isn't pure enough for that crowd there must be something serious the matter with him.

The greatest American racing association, in the State of New York, has not barred Mr. Sinclair, perhaps because "to the pure all things are pure" or because, after all, Mr. Sinclair's horses didn't get any of the oil bonds.

Republican senators that reply to disgraceful facts by trying to smirch Democrats are not impressive. They should get rid of their bribe-givers and bribe-takers. A man convicted of chicken stealing does not help his case by trying to prove that someone else stole chickens.

It seems hard to eliminate the conviction in some of our "best minds" that the shortest road to what you want is the road of bribery.

Hiram Johnson, of California, says that in connection with proposed public works, Colorado river, etc., there is being raised a slush fund that would make all others look like "chicken feed."

More details will be interesting.

Alice MacDonald, a young American girl, convicted of helping her husband murder a taxi driver for his money, was to have been hanged in Canada. Partly because of appeals and protests from the United States, perhaps, the authorities have commuted her punishment to life imprisonment.

This country also hangs women, and our protests to Canada are queer.

Canada sets us a good example in one thing. There, as in England, justice is justice, and not a joke.

When they sentence a murderer to life imprisonment, it MEANS life imprisonment, not a few years in jail and a chance to go murdering again.

The submarine S4 is raised, the pathetic remaining bodies of the brave officers and men are found "showing signs of a desperate struggle for life." And "there is an earnest and careful search for any diary that might have been left by the men."

No diary will be found probably. Men in action don't say much or write much. Two men will fight to the death with not a word spoken, only an occasional growl.

Cromwell, one of the greatest fighters the world ever knew, made Britain his own, dominated Europe, and his written words were so few you could put them all on a few sheets of paper. Milton, his private secretary, on the other hand, poured out words abundantly and beautifully. Milton was not in action, Cromwell was.

Mr. Firestone, who makes automobile tires, is busy in Ohio. His son, Harvey Firestone, Jr., is on the Firestone rubber plantation in Africa. Father Firestone from now on will communicate every day with son Firestone in Africa by radio.

At the same time Thomas F. Ryan, who, as the late J. Pierpont Morgan said, "Could have been the richest man in the world if he had cared to take the trouble," sends his diamonds by airplane from the middle of Africa to be cut in Holland and sold in London.

The human race has done a good deal since this century started. Yet, when it started chemists said they knew about all they ever could hope to know, science generally thought it had reached the top, and the great Wallace, who discovered evolution with Darwin, in his "Man's Place in the Universe," decided that intelligence exists only on this little earth. Into this duct the water forced a curtain and the flag, which clogged the valve on the after side of the bulkhead and prevented its closing. It was this water which forced the abandonment of the control room, and without access to that room the submarine could not be raised by the men trapped aboard her.

HUB SOCIETY IS STIRRED AS RICH WIDOW MARRIES IN A SECRET ROMANCE

Boston and New York society folk were amazed today to learn that Mrs. J. Pierrepont Edwards, 72-year-old widow of a former United States consul-general to Great Britain, was married two weeks ago to John Burden, 43, her Scotch butler.

The white-haired social-register dowager concealed her marriage until today, not only from the public, but also from members of her family, among whom are included Mrs. Reginald M. Johnson of Mt. Vernon st., Boston, and the famous polo players, Larry and Monte Waterbury.

News of it leaked out because Burden, becoming master of his elderly bride's estate at Bedford Hills, N. Y., peremptorily discharged several of his former co-servants.

The new Mrs. Burden is a grea-

U. S. TAR ARRESTED FOR ROBBING ONE OF S4 DEAD

While demands for a Congressional investigation of the S4 tragedy were being renewed at Washington, today, a guard at the Boston navy yard placed under arrest a seaman charged with stealing money and jewelry from the effects of the salvaged submarine's heroic dead.

Declaring it strange that "only one note was found," Representative Charles L. Gifford, of Cotuit, reopened before Congress the subject of the S4's sinking and the attendant rescue and salvage operations.

Congressman Gifford expressed the belief that a full written account of the last days spent by the doomed men trapped on the ocean floor

'GO SLOW ON 'L' PLANS,' BRUSH WARNS BOSTON

A warning to Boston not to rush into a new plan for control of the Boston Elevated Railway and a declaration that none of the plans so far proposed are fully satisfactory were made today by Matthew C. Brush, former Elevated head, at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

The speaker, who is now president of the American International Company, New York, and one of America's best known executives, also talked "straight from the shoulder" about the needs of Boston and New England.

"Boston is not dead, and Boston is prospering," he said, but he sharply rebuked "moss-covered weaklings who take a guarantee of 4 per cent on their fortunes instead of taking chances by developing new enterprises."

He declared that one of the most important tasks Boston has to face is bettering the downtown traffic

WOMAN STABS POLICE CHIEF FREED AS KILLER

Columbiana, Ala., March 22 (AP)—H. F. Blake, Calera chief of police, was fired at and then stabbed by two women in Circuit Court here today just after he had been acquitted of the murder of their relative, Miss Louise Monteabaro.

Mrs. Mabel Monteabaro, mother of the girl, fired a pistol from a distance of about five feet as Blake was being congratulated by his friends. The shot went wild.

Miss Cecil Tubbs, an aunt of the girl, leaped at the police chief, drawing a knife as she flung herself toward him and stabbed him in the neck. Blake fell, blood streaming from the wound.

The courtroom was in a turmoil in a moment and Charlie C. McCall, state attorney-general, who had personally prosecuted Blake, fainted from the excitement.

McCall quickly recovered himself and ordered the two women taken into custody.

CONSUL DEALS DEATH BLOW TO MEXICAN 'WAR'

The "insult" of the Mexican army by Herman A. MacDonald, secretary to Governor Alvan T. Fuller, is now in the hands of Ambassador Manuel C. Tellez at Washington and any further action will rest on him. This statement was made today by Raul G. Domingues, Mexican consul, at Boston.

Asked if he had received a reply to his protest to Governor Fuller of MacDonald's use of the phrase "Mexican general" in connection with Frank A. Goodwin, ousted registrar of motor vehicles, the consul said he had not.

He added that he will not make public the Governor's reply when he does receive it, and deplored the

MELLON DEFIES SENATE; FALL WINS TRIAL DELAY

Washington, March 22 (AP)—It was made clear today at the Treasury that regardless of the final vote in the Senate on the resolution aimed to obtain his retirement from the cabinet, Secretary Mellon would not resign.

After provoking two hours of sharp debate in the Senate, the Couzens' resolution, proposing Mellon's resignation, was sent to the calendar automatically under the rules and it may be days if not weeks before it can again be brought up.

Before this occurred, Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, close personal friends of the Treasury head, moved to defer the resolution to the

RADIO BREAKS $12.25; MOTORS HITS NEW HIGH

New York, March 22 (AP)—Break of $12.25 a share in Radio Corporation common stock checked, at least temporarily, another violent upswing on the New York Stock Exchange today in which more than a score of issues, led by General Motors and General Electric, had established record high levels. Radio dropped from an early high of $158.25 to $146.

General Motors, after establishing a new peak at $181.75, fell below $179.

Reactions of $1 to $3 a share from the high levels took place in the other industrial favorites.

So swift was the pace of trading that the ticker fell nearly 25 minutes behind the actual market with early indications that the day's sales would cross the 4,000,000 share mark for the first time.

finance committee and he demanded a roll call vote.

Before the roll could be called however, several Senators were on their feet and a vote was prevented.

While the debate was at its height the conspiracy trial of Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair was severed by Justice Jennings Bailey, who ordered Sinclair, wealthy oil operator, tried alone on April 4.

It is evident in Treasury circles that Mellon would ignore the attack upon him in Congress unless President Coolidge should demand his withdrawal from office, and no such action was considered possible.

The resolution for the secretary's retirement, offered by Senator Cousens, Republican, Michigan, arose partly from the Teapot Dome inquiry and Mellon's failure to disclose that Will H. Hays, former Republican national chairman, had offered him Sinclair Liberty bonds in exchange for a campaign contribution.

SINCLAIR TRIAL APRIL 4.

Urging adoption of his resolution declaring the Senate in favor of Mellon's resignation, Senator Cousens declared in the Senate the Treasury head had proven himself "totally unfit" to hold office.

Taking the floor soon after indications had come from the Treasury that Mellon would not resign, unless requested to do so by the President, the Michigan Senator said Mellon had been appealed to by Hays to help "conceal" part of Sinclair's $160,000 contribution to the Republican 1920 campaign deficit.

He recalled that Mellon had declined to accept the $50,000 bonds offered to him by Hays in exchange for a campaign contribution, but that the secretary had refused to tell of the incident.

"Only death finally forced him to talk," Cousens said. "A note on a paper of a dead man, Mr. Pratt, saying 'Andy,' brought out the story finally of how Mr. Mellon had been tendered these bonds."

The Michigan Senator, who has quarrelled with the Treasury for years, then went into a detailed discussion of Mellon's testimony before the oil committee.

Cousens complained Mellon was interested in the Pittsburgh Coal Company, which is charged had "done everything it could to defeat the obtaining of accurate findings as to its mines" in connection with the Senate strike inquiry.

"DEATH MADE HIM TELL."

He referred to a contribution by Mellon to the campaign fund of George Wharton Pepper in the 1926 Pennsylvania senatorial primary and how Mellon had spoken for Pepper.

He next cited the law declaring it to be a criminal offense for "any person appointed to the office of Secretary of the Treasury" to be "directly or indirectly concerned or interested in carrying on the business of trade or commerce" and asserted that Mellon is a stockholder in corporations such as Gulf Oil Corporation, Gulf Refining Corporation, Gulf Production Co., Mexican Gulf Oil Co., the Aluminum Co. of America and others.

Republican senators stood by closely and Reed, of Pennsylvania; Edge, of New Jersey, and Moses, of New Hampshire, occasionally asked Cousens for more specific information.

Cousens said that upon Mellon's entry into public service he turned over his interests in the Overholt Whiskey Company to be held in trust which he declared to be "in direct violation of the policy established by the Senate."

He charged that the Mellon banks in Pittsburgh had "defrauded" the government of $91,000 by making consolidated tax returns while Mr. Mellon was secretary.

grandmother. Her husband died during the war. Burden served with the famous "Black Watch" regiment of Scotland in the war, returning after it was over to his duties as the Edwards butler.

"Of course, we are married," said Burden today. "Why shouldn't we be? I see nothing strange in that, and we're as happy as any newly-married couple."

He also said that there was to be no honeymoon trip, "unless reporters force us to run away and hide."

In spite of his declaration that there was nothing unusual in the match, the surprised relatives of the former Mrs. Edwards were reported to be considering a family conference over the matter.

Society in both Boston and New York, as well as in many world capitals, notably London, has known Mrs. J. Pierrepont Edwards for many years, and her daughters and other kin are both prominent and active in social circles.

The Waterbury "boys" are her nephews. Besides Mrs. Johnson of Boston, another daughter is Mrs. Robert J. Turnbull of New York.

The marriage of Mrs. Edwards and her butler took place in New York at the rectory of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Rev. S. Raymond Brincheroff officiating. The couple retired immediately to the mansion at Whitewood Farms, Bedford Hills, one of the most beautiful of Westchester County estates.

A lobby suite had been built into the mansion, according to members of the household.

Mrs. Edwards had lived somewhat simply, as to social activity, in the great house, fronted by picturesque duck ponds and whose lawn was enlivened by strutting Spanish geese and other pretty fowl, since the death, during the war, of her husband, 86 years old.

Burden was born in Scotland and brought to the United States as a butler by the late Edwards; returned at the outbreak of the war to enlist in Scotland under the colors of the Black Watch. He served until the Armistice, and, returning to the Edwards home, found his master dead. He resumed charge of the routine of servants.

Two weeks ago last Monday the wealthy widow and her butler called one of the Edwards automobiles and were driven to Mt. Kisco, a few miles away. A license was obtained, and the pair, swearing all to secrecy, hurried to the pastor.

The witnesses are listed on the records as Mortimer Dewitt Woodcock and Alice Y. Lenis, but, because of the secrecy with which the romantic affair was carried out, no further identification could be made.

SENATE BALKS FULLER ON HUB TAX

The Massachusetts Senate refused today, as did the other branch of the Legislature a few days ago, to accept an amendment proposed by Governor Fuller to the city of Boston tax limit and borrowing bill.

The Governor's amendment would have cut the Boston tax limit from $13.40 to $12.25. It would also have forced the city to borrow within the debt limit two-thirds of the $9,000,000 to be spent for hospitals, instead of one-third as provided in the measure passed by the Legislature.

The vote in the Senate was without debate or roll call.

NEW BILL IS DRAFTED FOR LABOR INSURANCE

A new draft of a bill filed by the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, for insuring members of a labor union under group life insurance policies was today reported favorably by the legislative committee on insurance.

The committee will take no action on the Governor's recommendation for an investigation of the increase in fire insurance rates until it has conferred with Felix Forenberg, chairman of the special committee appointed by Mayor Nichols to make a study of the same subject. Mr. Forenberg is out of town.

amount of publicity which the incident has received.

"It is one of the small incidents that come up in the work of the consulate," said Consul Dominguez. "The incident has been referred to the Mexican ambassador at Washington and I will have nothing further to say."

He denied having said he threatened the life of the chief of police of Cleveland, as reported.

The incident, he said, occurred on a Mexican holiday and the flag of Mexico was displayed on the grounds of the consulate. A policeman, an ordinary policeman, entered the consulate and said it was forbidden to fly foreign flags. Dominguez said he told the officer he had permission to fly the flag, that he would not take it down, and if the policeman did so he would have to stand the consequences of his act.

Asked to pose for photographs, Consul Dominguez refused.

"I don't intend to be mixed up in any propaganda," he stated. Asked to explain this statement, he said:

"I don't intend to get mixed up in a local political row between one state employe backed by the governor, and a former state employe backed by somebody else."

GOODWIN JUST LAUGHED

In the meantime Frank A. Goodwin, whose controversy with MacDonald caused the fireup, indulged in hearty laughter, but refused to add fuel to the flames by issuing another statement.

"I'm not in this war at all," he chuckled. "I have nothing further to say. I think MacDonald ought to be able to take care of himself. I never laughed so much as I have since yesterday. I shall make no statement."

Taps Sound Again

(Lieut. Graham N. Fitch of the S4 was laid to rest in Arlington Cemetery late today.)

GRAY skies and winter sea and white gulls crying,
Hope there and faith there beneath the churning wave.
"Are you yet living?" "Aye, but dying."
"God be with your courage and your hearts be brave!"

Gray skies and winter sea, a weak hand tapping,
White gulls wheeling o'er a cold, dark hell.
"Are you yet living?" "Aye, life's sapping;
Men are growing weaker, but—all is well!"

Gray skies and springtime and storms have ended,
Rifles whimper softly where the wind goes by;
Gone the little fears that life attended,
Ended now the vigil where the dull hopes lie.

Gray skies and springtime—and what of the morrow?
Bugles whisper silver; the promise that they tell:
"Gone the tiny fences that were our sorrow;
Taps are sounded clear again, and—all is well!"

GIRLS LEAP AT MEDWAY FIRE

West Medway, March 22 (INS)—Six girl employes of the Medway Shoe Company either jumped to safety or were carried down ladders by firemen today when flames swept through the building. The loss was about $10,000.

Miss Viola Baker, finding herself trapped in a room on the second story of the building, jumped through the window to the ground. She was badly cut by the glass, but was not hurt by the fall.

The fire, of unknown origin, started in the basement storeroom and worked its way through the entire building.

The fire was the fourth of the past month in the same building.

Coyne of Dorchester filed in the House today an order for purchase of electric fans "and other cooling and refrigerating devices" to keep the legislators cool and healthy during the hot weeks.

"Very few members have North Shore summer places to go to anyway," said Coyne. "Public ownership is the only logical solution, and I, for one, am content to fight for this principle if it takes all summer."

The seaman under arrest at the Navy Yard as a "ghoul" is attached to the U. S. S. Southery, receiving ship. He was a member of a detail that entered the S4 in dry dock and carried personal belongings of the dead crew members from the submarine.

He was discovered attempting to dry out $89 in bills and was immediately placed under guard to await court martial.

Navy yard officials, corroborating the report of his arrrest, refused to divulge his name.

The naval board of investigation today removed from the lockers aboard the salvaged S4 the personal effects of her dead.

Books, private papers, clothing, souvenirs gathered by her personnel during cruises in foreign waters, composed the bulk of the locker contents. All were water-soaked and will require several days of drying. Then they will be turned over to relatives of the 39 dead.

Lieut. Graham Fitch was buried in Arlington National Cemetery at Washington late this afternoon.

BEGINS MARRIED LIFE UNDER ARREST

Lonminster, March 22 (AP)—"I now pronounce you husband and wife," said City Clerk C. W. Harnden, in concluding the ceremony in which he officiated this afternoon in City Hall when he united in marriage Frederick D. Goguen and Mary Tomassetti, both of 2 Meade st.

"And I now place you under arrest on the charge of desertion," declared Police Inspector Lester Al Harvey. Goguen's best man at the ceremony, addressing the bridegroom.

The inspector, who, in plain clothes, was in the city clerk's office at the time, was asked by Goguen to be his best man at the ceremony, and Miss Tomassetti requested Miss Irene Frechietti, a clerk in the office, to be her bridesmaid, which she graciously consented to do.

When the names were pronounced Inspector Harvey recognized the bridegroom as that of a man wanted on the charge of deserting Camp Devens.

Goguen, accompanied by his bride, was taken at once to Camp Devens. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tomassetti of Framingham.

LOVE EFFACES RACIAL LINES, THEY SAY

The mystic Orient—represented in one instance by a laundryman of the Back Bay—has ensnared the hearts of two New England girls of Yankee lineage who today reiterated their intentions of soon wedding Chinese.

Henry Dong

Miss Miriam E. Mills, Boston artists' model, 19, an attractive brunette, said she would marry Henry Dong, Back Bay laundryman, next Tuesday, despite protests of relatives.

They will be wed by a justice of the peace and will sail for Canton, China, where they will be married according to the Chinese ritual.

"We will live with Henry's folks for several years," said Miss Mills, "and then return to Boston, making our permanent home here."

Miss Mills lives at 54 Astor st. She met Dong two years ago and "it was a case of love at first sight," she said.

"The matter of difference in race did not enter into my sentiments. His mystic philosophy, his kindness, won me from the start," she said.

In New York Miss Letty W. Huston, member of a well-to-do Lisbon Falls, Me., family, said she still intended to marry Lucian H. Chen, Chinese student, even though a marriage license taken out by them has been returned.

Opposition by her brothers and sisters did not cause postponement of their wedding, she said, but Chen's father threatened to disinherit him if he did not finish school before he married. Miss Huston is 23 and a dietitian.

"I would not have let things go so far if I were not sure we would make a success of it," she declared. She left her Maine home to work in New York last autumn.

Both prospective brides are orphans.

FAVORS NIGHT TOIL FOR WOMEN IN MILLS

STATE COUNCIL BACKS 6-TO-10 2-SHIFT BILL

The Massachusetts Council of the New England Council today lent its support to the bill providing for employment of women between 6 and 10 p. m. in the textile industry, pointing out in letters to Governor Fuller and all Bay State business concerns the arguments in favor of this legislation, called the "two shift" bill.

At present the law permits employment of women between 8 and 10 p. m. in any industry in the State except textile mills. The "6 p. m. bill" would remove this special restriction.

The bill has passed the Senate and will soon be considered in the House.

"It is well to note that this bill relates solely to the discrimination now unfairly operating against our textile mills and does not affect the 48-hour legal limitation as to hours of work of women in industry," the council states in its message to business men.

The Council calls attention to the record of proceedings before the Senate committee, where it was stated removal of the 6 p. m. restriction would enable Massachusetts cotton mills to run a modified double shift and thereby produce at a lower unit cost, thus aiding them to compete with cotton mills elsewhere.

Washington, March 22 (AP)—Bolling Field resembled a county fair today as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh continued his air derbies over Washington for members of Congress and their families.

$17,500 AWARD CHEERS LIFE OF LEGLESS CHILD

A little sigh from a darkened room. Then a jerky little hand pulls the blanket over the white face on the pillow.

On a cot at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Charles Story, in Crocker st., Somerville, today, lies baby Eleanor Story, six-year-old child who won $17,500 from the Boston Elevated Railroad yesterday for the loss of both her legs.

"She is a nervous wreck from the court ordeal," her grandmother explained when Eleanor crowded under the covers, afraid of another stranger.

"She is usually the happiest child in the neighborhood, but going into court to show the jury her amputated legs brought the whole event back and prostrated both the child and her mother."

It was on the morning of October 6, 1925, that Eleanor, then four, skipped down the hill from her home at 20 Barstow st., to do an errand for her mother, Mrs. Rayford Story.

"Tom" Wise Passes Away in New York

New York, March 22 (AP)—Broadway today mourned the death of Thomas A. Wise, shepherd of the Lambs and one of the great character actors of the American stage. He was 63 years old.

Wise died from a bronchial and heart attack.

A month ago he became ill while appearing in Chicago in "Behold This Dreamer," and returned to New York to recuperate.

"Tom," as he was known from coast to coast, essayed many famous roles, but is probably best remembered for his portrayal of Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and Senator William H. Langon in "The Gentleman from Mississippi," a play of which he was co-author.

Vanderbilts Collect Strange 'Honeymoon Trophies'

'RED' SAVAGE'S WIFE IS GIVEN 5 MONTHS

Providence, March 22 (AP)—Louise Gallagher Savage, wife of George (Red) Savage, who is now serving 13 years in Leavenworth for participation in the $262,000 stamp robbery of the Pawtucket postoffice, was today sentenced in Superior Court to serve five months in the women's reformatory on a charge of criminal possession of burglars' tools.

Mrs. Savage was arrested in Barrington last September. Search of the premises revealed burglars' tools and a quantity of jewelry stolen from safes were opened at the Plainville stock company in Plainville, Conn.

Many of the tools had been stolen in burglaries and shop breaks in Rhode Island and nearby Massachusetts towns.

FIREMEN FACE DEATH AT SO. BOSTON BLAZE

A stubborn blaze in the first and second floors of the three-story wood storage warehouse of Dwight-Smith Company, at 1403 Columbia rd., South Boston, early today, gave firemen a stiff battle and before the flames were under control three alarms had brought many companies to the scene.

The fire was discovered by Henry S. Cunniff, night watchman for the Bay State Distributing Company, at 1406 Columbia rd., who was making his rounds. He sent in the first alarm.

By the time the first companies reached the scene the fire had such a start that a second alarm was immediately sounded, soon to be followed by the third.

Great tongues of flame and billowing smoke made the firemen's task difficult as they strove to gain mastery of the inferno. Numbers of firemen were imperilled both by flying glass and the smoke.

New Plane for Lindy Will Have Nickel-Plated Motor

New York, March 22 (AP)—A luxurious new airplane, with nickel-plated motor, self-starter and other conveniences lacking in the Spirit of St. Louis, will be ready for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh by April 1. The plane was designed by the flying colonel himself. It will have the same wing spread as the famous transatlantic plane and something of the same appearance. It will have accommodations for three passengers in addition to the pilot and have a speed of 125 miles an hour.

BOY 'GUNMEN' SPLIT PLEAS; $35,000 BAIL

Boyish robber pals "fell out" today in Malden District Court when one of the two Somerville boys who looted a Malden A. and P. store yesterday pleaded guilty, while his comrade pleaded not guilty.

Record bail of $25,000 was fixed in the case of the latter, James T. Burnett, 19, of Montrose st., Somerville, who, after his plea of not guilty, waived a hearing and was held for Grand Jury action.

The other boy, Archibald Fraser, 19, of Summer st., Somerville, not only admitted his guilt in the Malden holdup but also pleaded guilty to armed robbery of Claude O. Dame of Everett on March 12.

Fraser was held in $15,000 bail, his case being referred to the Superior Court under the law, because of the seriousness of the charges.

"A man from New York gave us four guns," was the mysterious explanation of the crimes that this boy made in a brief statement to the court.

"We first looked over an Economy store yesterday, but there was a police sergeant and a big dog near there so we looked further and picked out the A. and P.," he added.

Following the holdup of the manager, Henry Wrightington, and robbery of the cash register, the boys were captured after a hot chase, during which they are alleged to have fired point-blank at their police pursuers.

Burnett was charged with assault with intent to kill Metropolitan Policeman George D. McCormick, carrying a loaded revolver, assault and battery and armed robbery on Wrightington and the same on Claude Dame of Everett. Fraser was not charged with assault on the policeman, but his guilty plea covered the other three counts.

CATHERINE SMITH

Youngest daughter of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, engaged to Francis P. Quillinan of the New York attorney-general's staff. The wedding is to take place in June. Miss Smith is 23 years old.

N. Y. SUSPECTS IDENTIFIED AS HUB MEN

Two alleged holdup thugs who claimed New York as their home were captured outside the Sullivan sq. terminal today by three Somerville policemen.

Through fingerprints they were identified at the State House, however, as John Sokolaski of Essex st., Charlestown, and Thomas F. Burke of Bullard st., Dorchester.

A few hours after capture the pair were held in Somerville Court in a total of $90,000 bail on three charges of robbery while armed.

Charles Callahan of Wigglesworth st., Somerville, was about to close his gasoline filling station at midnight when two youths held him up with a gun, backed him into a rear room and robbed him of $40. While Callahan had his hands in the air, Louis Jacques of Pond st., Winchester, drove up for gas, was captured and paraded into the same room, but was not robbed.

After the young thugs left Callahan notified the police and Officers John McKenzie, Cornelius Canavan and Jeremiah Sheehan went touring in a police car.

They came upon Sokolaski and Burke outside the terminal as the youths were hurrying along. Both were placed under arrest, all the officers having their revolvers out. A loaded revolver was found on one of the youths, it is charged.

After being booked, two more charges were placed against them, one of robbing the store of John Talkas in Highland ave., Somerville, on the night of February 24, and one of holding up a gas station in the Fellsway on March 4.

To Test 500 Sets of Twins for Their Similarity

Berkeley, Cal., March 22 (AP)—Efforts to determine how nearly twins are identical at birth, and to what extent they retain the similarity in spite of the influence of environment, will be made by the University of California in a study of 500 sets of twins.

Professor H. E. Jones, director of research, said observation would be started as soon as possible after their birth. They will be examined periodically at home or in the laboratories.

One test will consist of passing an electric current, too slight to feel, through the child's body while the child is asked to perform certain physical acts. Various emotional stimuli will then be applied.

STORM DRIVES OUT TO SEA

The storm that stealthily moved out of Minnesota into Ontario through the night to frighten New England with occasional flakes of snow was well on its way to sea via the St. Lawrence river before noon today.

In the partial vacuum caused by its passage, northwest winds are predicted to follow, lowering the temperature slightly in Greater Boston tomorrow.

Until the disturbance has completely vacated the Canadian provinces, its presence will be reflected here in cloudy skies and probable occasional showers.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Partly cloudy and colder tonight; Friday fair and colder; fresh southwest, shifting to northwest winds Friday.

GETS 3 YEARS ON TOP OF 12

When George McGrath, 19, of Sprague st., Charlestown, finishes a sentence of 13 to 20 years in State Prison for assault with intent to kill, then he can start in on a new sentence of three to five years in the same place for carrying a dangerous weapon.

Judge Fosdick imposed the sentences today in Superior Court, at the same time sentencing Thomas F. Conway of Lexington st., Charlestown, arrested with McGrath, to two years in the House of Correction for larceny of an automobile.

The alleged assault by McGrath was committed on Warren St. Gowing on Crescent st., Somerville, while Gowing was attempting to halt a car he recognized as one stolen from a Somerville friend.

CHARITY TO BENEFIT FROM JORDAN WILL

The sum of $1000 each was left to the House of the Good Shepherd, St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum, Little Sisters of the Poor, St. Joseph's Foundling Asylum and Rev. James Halloran, all of Scranton, Pa., in the will of John W. Jordan of Brookline, filed today in Norfolk Probate court at Dedham.

Three brothers and four sisters were left $2000 each, and two other brothers, associated with the testator in business, were given $5000 each.

One-third of the estate, the amount of which was not given, goes to the widow, Mrs. Margaret T. Jordan, and the rest and residue is to be held in trust for the benefit of three daughters.

Smith of Arlington, at the bride's residence in Somerville. Following a short honeymoon, Dr. and Mrs. Beal will reside at 38 College ave., West Somerville. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy.

BLACKSTONE-TO-DEDHAM NEW BUS LINE OPPOSED

The petition of the Medway & Dedham Bus Line, Inc., for a certificate of public convenience and necessity to operate a bus line between Blackstone and the Boston-Dedham line at Spring st. was today opposed by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company before the Public Utility Commission.

Counsel William A. Murray of the bus line said that the company now operates a similar route, but a more direct line was wanted to give rapid service.

OVERCROWDED SCHOOL PROBED BY GOVERNOR

Overcrowded conditions in the Walter E. Fernald state school in Waverley are being investigated by Governor Fuller as a result of a complaint filed by Senator William L. Hennessey of Dorchester.

Hennessey, who attempted to get a boy under five years of age admitted to the institution, was told in a letter by Supt. Ransom A. Greene that there are more than 50 on the children's waiting list and that all departments are overcrowded.

PROBATION FOR FATHER WHO STABBED DAUGHTER

Found guilty today of assault and battery on his married daughter, whom he stabbed in the back last Saturday, Thomas Walsh, 49, of Franklin st., East Somerville, was given a suspended sentence of three months in the House of Correction by Judge Sturtevant today. He was placed on probation until May 1 and warned not to again strike his daughter, who is Mrs. Julia Geesil, 24, of Perkins st. Walsh promised to obey.

HOURS OF PLEASURE IN STORE FOR VERY YOUNG SOCIETY SET, AT REPERTORY WORKSHOP, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Joseph Auslander to Give Lecture and Playlet

SO VERY BRIEF IS TO BE JOSEPH AUSLANDER'S Boston stay scarcely anything of the lighter social tendency can be crowded into a short forty-eight hours since special appearances claim almost all of his time. A tea for him, and a dinner as originally planned must give way to the two Boston engagements that are primarily his reasons for coming over from New York. Chiefly he comes to town as bright particular magnet for Saturday morning at the Repertory Theater Workshop's productions. In terms couched for the still very young set (the productions are for children) he will talk about his book, "The Winged Horse," and its chronicle of the poets from Grecian to present days.

LATER THAT DAY HE GOES TO THE TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB where his listeners' minds are more contemporaneous with his own, even though his subject is the same as for the children. At the Repertory he shares the program with "Pierrot in Flowerland" done by young people and Milne's "Christopher Robin" read by Miss Katherine Warren in her delightful way. These also are part of the preceding day's program, Friday afternoon to be exact, and for good measure on Friday there is "The Clock Shop" that brings all the clocks to life. Doing things to amuse the Younger Generation on its weekends is getting to be much more than a fashionable fad.

A GLANCE AT THE SPONSOR LIST FOR Friday and Saturday's productions at the Repertory confirms the fact that worthwhile efforts enlist the praise and patronage of worthwhile people. Dr. and Mrs. Roger Lee, Mrs. Reginald C. Robbins, Mrs. Fiske Warren, Miss Mary P. Winsor, Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Sedgwick, the Gerald Bramwells, Sir Wilfred and Lady Grenfell, Andrew Hepburn, Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper, Mrs. G. Hector Fairt, Mrs. A. Lynde Cochrane, Mrs. Charles Collens, F. Murray Forbes, Courtney Crocker, the Rev. William H. Dewart and Mrs. Dewart, Mrs. Robert Amory and Mrs. Sidney M. Williams, the Hon. Andrew Peters and Mrs. Peters are on the list.

THIS WEEK'S RETURN TRAVELERS SET included Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Menard of Cohasset, who did a swing of the Southern circle in place of their usual late winter stay at Edgewater, where they have a winter home on the Florida coast. The Menard itinerary southward commenced with the first lap of a cruise, to Nassau and Havana, and ended in Boston in plenty of time to allow Mrs. Menard to be on hand in Cohasset for a pet charity affair scheduled for tomorrow evening. Very specially interested in the Unity Club Alliance is she.

ON FRIDAY EVENING THERE IS A VERY special Alliance occasion, a dance with something in the way of a circus grafted onto the turpsichorean motif. It interests the smart young married set of Cohasset and the South Shore adjacent thereto. In April a third affair is scheduled, and for that Mrs. Menard and her staff plan something else different and unusual. Of course during their Havana visit (ft was a week or so long) the Menards did the races.

IN FACT THEY ELECTED THE gala race day of the entire week, Sunday, when the president of the Republic appears at the national pastime and everyone, residential and tourist, does the same thing. On their trip northward they stopped here and there along the coast of America's Riviera, at Miami, at Palm Beach and at Ormond, before halting at their own place at Edgewater. Florida is invariably a part of the Menard winter plan, either for an indefinite family visit at Edgewater, or for a tour of the smart resorts as they did it this season.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Thomas Powers Entertains at Select Dinner in New York Apartment

PLEASANTLY DOES THOMAS POWERS, BEAU BRUMMEL OF Newport, New York and Washington, flit along the frivolous path of the leisured rich that involves duties no more arduous than the giving of smart little dinners. At this form of entertainment none is more expert than Mr. Powers, whose recherche affairs are as choice in the selection of decorations and viands as in the guests asked to partake of the Powers hospitality. In New York Mr. Powers occupies a Park ave. apartment, numbered at 550 of that notably smart thoroughfare, and there he recently gave one of his famous dinners.

MR. AND MRS DUDLEY GILBERT, MR. AND MRS. GEORGE B. DeFOREST, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. P. Richardson and Mrs. Moses Taylor Campbell were Mr. Powers' guests. They gathered about a table arranged after the manner of a miniature sunken garden fragrant with the flowers of Eastertide, in Newport, where Mr. Powers has for several seasons occupied a Muenchinger-King apartment, such small and select dinner companies are more or less frequent occurrence, but not too frequently to please those belonging in the Powers circle. At Virginia Hot Springs also Mr. Powers enlivens his stays with the same choice hospitalities.

HOWEVER KEENLY EXPERTS MAY BE WATCHING THE tennis players at Longwood, the observer who is feminine of the species is keenly interested in what they wear, since "they" are likewise feminine and showing fine tennis form and the latest in tennis apparel. White of course is top favorite. Usually white linen, sometimes silk, but as businesslike and unadorned as needs be for this most strenuous of sports. Miss Lee Palfrey between bouts added to an all white linen frock a variegated colored sweater and Mrs. Charles Hubbard, Jr., added the same snuggly warm sort of garment to her attire, but her's was white in deference to her frock.

ALSO AMONG THE RETURNING ONES ARE MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR M. MUNROE of the Hotel Sheraton, who have been for the past three months in Europe, and soon depart from town to be for the summer at West Harwich on Cape Cod. Mr. and Mrs. S. Chilton Crocker, also of the Sheraton, entertained friends at dinner not so long ago, to celebrate their wedding anniversary. "Silver" was the decorative motif, since the Crockers have spanned a quarter century of wedded life, and place cards and favors were in keeping.

THOMPSON OUSTS SCHOOL HEAD IN HISTORY ROW

Chicago, March 22 (AP)—Mayor Thompson has redeemed one of his campaign pledges after an 11-month tussle with the British Lion and King George of England. William McAndrew, whose term of office expired in January, was "ousted" officially as superintendent of schools by an 8 to 2 vote of school board members. One minority member was absent. The charges against the former superintendent mostly concerned themselves with insubordination and improper conduct in office, and in much of the testimony McAndrew was pilloried as an exponent and propagandist of Britishism.

CURLEY SPEAKS ON AIMS OF IRISH IN AMERICA

The Irish race seeks equality, former Mayor James M. Curley declared in an address on "The Irish Race in America," before more than 400 members and guests of Alma Mater Court, M. C. O. F., in Meridian hall, East Boston.

It was the court's annual Irish night, and Past High Chief Ranger Frank Haley of Orient Heights was master of ceremonies. Among the other guests were Miss Mary McGovern, deputy high chief ranger; Miss Helen Galvin, high court outside sentinel; Rev. Dr. James H. O'Neil, high court chaplain, and Miss Frances O'Donnell, high court assistant secretary and treasurer. Representatives of the East Boston courts were also present.

Let no man find a coffee elsewhere better than at home

MANY fine hotels, half the country over, have adopted La Touraine Coffee. So with extra-fare trains. So with tea and coffee rooms whose fame depends in large part on the coffee.

They select their coffee in a scientific way. Expert tasters are employed to compare them. They know that all else counts for little if the coffee does not please.

Even cheaper restaurants, where men go for luncheon. They feature coffee. So men are educated.

New Elks Hotel — Boston
One server of La Touraine

These fine hotels, cafes and lunch-rooms are now serving La Touraine. Hundreds of them. They have selected this exquisite blend after countless tests.

That La Touraine coffee is sold in your stores. The most delightful coffee those experts have discovered. It is sold at the price of other high-grade coffees. Why serve a lesser coffee at your table? You might as well have the best.

Why La Touraine Coffee Won

New England is the coffee center, the birthplace of fine coffee. For 237 years experts here have been trying to develop a super-blend.

Over twenty years ago, Mr. W. S. Quinby decided to excel. Mr. E. J. Burler, the famous coffee expert, joined in this endeavor.

They finally selected the four best coffees in existence. Each comes from a different country. Each is the pride of a nation.

They perfected a blend—a secret blend—which nobody else has matched. It was adopted by the connoisseurs. The finest hotels, after countless tests, made a feature of this coffee.

Housewives learned about it, then the use spread to the homes. Now more homes are serving La Touraine in New England than any other brand.

You might as well have the best

At All Grocers

Now that coffee—the most exquisite—is at your command. It costs no more than the ordinary. And every blending is supervised by the men who created this delight for you.

You do an injustice to you and yours if you do not serve that matchless coffee in your home.

Buy La Touraine Coffee in the Bean and have your grocer grind it fresh for you.

For percolator have it ground as fine as coarse granulated sugar.

HUB SOCIETY MATRON SUES IN TRIANGLE

Fate has sounded the "zero hour" for the serenely happy love idyl of Lualla Griffith Fairfield Barr, Boston society matron, blissfully happy wife and mother in South Seas and in America, and for years favorite hostess in diplomatic circles at Washington.

From Nashua, N. H., came tidings that amazed society circles today, in the news that Mrs. Barr's "perfect love" is gone shimmering, because of the mysterious influence of an old school woman, so the wife alleges, over her husband, James Cummings Barr, prominent lawyer and head of a railway appliance corporation.

In the New Hampshire courts the wife has brought suit against Barr charging him with cruelty and failure to provide for her support. She asks the court to award her money from her husband's income, so she can provide for herself.

Strange telephone calls, and an anonymous messages, play in the shattering of her drama of love turned to sorrow. She says these calls and other things in her domestic infelicity, have so preyed upon her as to break her health.

Mrs. Barr recently gave up her Park ave., New York place and came to Boston where for several weeks she lived at the Ritz-Carlton.

The papers filed in court allege that for several years past Barr has been constantly away from home and his whereabouts unknown to Mrs. Barr or even to his business associates.

These unexplained absences, together with mysterious telephone calls and anonymous messages relating to Mr. Barr and his apparent activities outside the scope of his ordinary business or domestic life, it is alleged, have shattered Mrs. Barr's health, and have made necessary the almost constant attendance of physicians and nerve specialists.

The petition to the court further charges that since about July, 1926, he has neglected her and "spent much of his time with a woman who has attained great influence over him, and to whom a large part of his income is diverted, and has kept his whereabouts concealed from her, so she could not find out where he was and when she was ill or otherwise in need of care, company and protection."

Mrs. Barr recites that on December 24, 1926, Barr struck her several times, causing her to fall to the floor and to suffer great pain and humiliation, and that he has repeatedly used coarse and profane language to her.

Valleyfield, Que., March 22 (AP)—George McDonald was in Valleyfield jail today and in the prison yard the gallows stood in readiness for his execution at dawn tomorrow.

Flood lights were installed in the inclosed yard, trained upon the newly painted crimson gallows, indicating that McDonald will hang before the sun rises. It was originally planned to execute Mrs. Doria McDonald shortly after midnight and her husband an hour or so later, but the wife's sentence was yesterday commuted to life imprisonment.

ATTACK BOSTON MAN IN COAL MINES PROBE

Washington, March 22 (AP)—Charging that the citizens of West Virginia are being victimized by a vicious system of absentee landlordism," Van A. Bittner, chief representative of the United Mine Workers in that state, today continued his attack on Charles M. Schwab and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., before the Senate committee investigating the bituminous industry.

The union leader also named W. H. Coolidge of Boston as one of a "landed aristocracy" which, he contended, "is carefully laying its plans to continue its strangle hold on the state and its resources."

"If Mr. Schwab and Mr. Rockefeller and W. H. Coolidge of Boston lived in West Virginia instead of New York and Boston," shouted Bittner, "they would take the same interest in developing the human side of industry there as they do in humanitarian work in New York and elsewhere."

FROM MINERS' POCKETS

Senator Wheeler (Dem.) of Montana broke in to remark that the money used for charity by these men is taken from the pockets of West Virginia miners.

Bittner asserted that more than half of West Virginia territory is under absentee ownership, citing statistics of T. C. Townsend, former State tax commissioner.

These indicated, he said, that 7,500,000 acres of West Virginia land are under "such absentee landlordism," adding that the remaining half of the state—which he said was owned by farmers and small business men—are taxed twice as heavily as the other half for support of schools and civic purposes.

GETTING ALL DATA.

"As a result of this exploitation," said Bittner, "the people of West Virginia are intensely resentful."

Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, suggested that such a large degree of absentee ownership in West Virginia was inevitable, due to the natural resources there. He said that the committee was primarily interested in getting "all the data available to form a basis for legislation to improve conditions, if such legislation is desirable."

High School "Sheiks" Grab Old "Tin Hats" at 25 Cents Per

Brookfield March 22 (AP)—Brookfield went derby-mad today. Sheiks who never before thought they would wear one of the "tin hats" did.

Patrick H. Gorman, new owner of the Crosby store, cleaned house and found an old stock of derbies which had for years been white elephants because of the change in style. He dusted them off and put one in his window, for sale at 25 cents or what have you?

The result was immediate. A high school youth invested and having broken the ice, his schoolmates quickly followed. Now the high school is derby-hatted.

The record began about 11:18 p. m. and continued for an hour, the distance of the tremor being estimated at 2200 miles. The time of its origin was calculated as 11:13 p. m.

The quake was said to have been the most violent in many years in Mexico City.

To those modern women who believe in challenging a problem foresquarely, the Coward way of fitting a shoe exactly to the needs of an individual foot makes a strong appeal. It takes many kinds of shoes, many sizes, many widths to do that. But Coward has many kinds of shoes, all sizes, all widths.

Have you been annoyed by pains under the arch? Then there's a Coward Shoe to relieve that and to help restore the arch to normal strength. Have you an enlarged joint which if neglected may grow into a bunion? Coward has a shoe for that—and it neatly conceals the enlarged joint. Do you require a stout walking shoe, but one that's trim and jaunty, too? You can get just such a shoe here.

So you can see that The Coward Shoe is no ordinary "comfort shoe". Whatever one you choose will be mighty comfortable—you can depend on that. But it will also come directly to the point in helping your feet—and clad them attractively at the same time, too.

Twelve Hundred Dollars Cash In Ten Years

$3000 Savings Bank Life Insurance AND A Savings Bank Account

Save $10.00 a month, and let the earnings on your investment pay for $3000 life insurance.

Our combination Savings-Insurance Plan calls for a monthly deposit of $10.00 over a period of ten years, under which you are immediately insured for $3000, and at the end of ten years you are entitled to receive in cash an amount substantially in excess of your total deposits.

For age 37 (or younger) at entry, the savings bank account at the end of ten years, together with the cash surrender value of the insurance policies, will exceed

TWELVE HUNDRED DOLLARS

Example: If you are thirty years of age, you open your savings-insurance account with a deposit of $17.00 and thereafter deposit $10 monthly for 9 years and 11 months.

If you are then living, you will be entitled to receive:—

CASH VALUE OF INSURANCE	$330.42
BALANCE IN SAVINGS ACCOUNT (ESTIMATED)	920.00
TOTAL	$1250.42

Insurance Dividends are deposited in Savings Bank Account

If you do not live to complete your deposits, your estate receives the $3000 insurance, PLUS the amount then standing to your credit in your savings bank account.

Thus. If your death should occur just before the end of the 10th year, your estate would be entitled to receive:—

LIFE INSURANCE	$3000.00
BALANCE IN SAVINGS BANK ACCOUNT (ESTIMATED)	920.00
TOTAL	$3920.00

The accumulation period may be extended to 15 or 20 years, or longer, if desired.

Or you may discontinue the monthly payments at the end of ten years, withdraw the $920 from your savings bank account, and continue your $3000 life insurance at the net cost applicable to your age when the policies were originally issued. The net cost in the eleventh year would be $11.36 per $1000.00, based on dividends being paid in 1927.

$1.00 a month will provide $300 insurance and $120 cash at the end of ten years.

$2.00 a month will provide $600 insurance and $240 cash at the end of ten years.

$3.00 a month will provide $900 insurance and $360 cash at the end of ten years.

$4.00 a month will provide $1200 insurance and $480 cash at the end of ten years.

$5.00 a month will provide $1500 insurance and $625 cash at the end of ten years.

The dividends now actually being paid by the ten Savings-Insurance Banks are 33 per cent greater than the dividends assumed in the above estimates. The estimates also assume interest on the savings bank account to be accumulated at 4 per cent per annum compounded semi-annually.

Under the direction and supervision of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

HUB GOOD WILL PARTY GREETED AT HAVANA

By HERT FORD

Havana, March 22, via Tropical Radio Telegraph Company—General Machado, President of Cuba, and officials of Havana today received, with open arms, the "Good Will" pilgrims from Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The tourists landed here early today from the Calamares, flagship of the United Fruit Company White Fleet, after having spent four days at sea.

They were met at the dock by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Cuba and given a tour of the city in automobiles. They visited the presidential palace and were granted an audience by President Machado.

In the afternoon they were guests of the tourists' commission and were conveyed to the beautiful suburbs and to sugar plantations and factories. In the evening they are to witness a jalalai match, the Cuban national game, between two star teams.

When J. Paul Foster, manager of the Boston Chamber of Commerce tour, and William J. Fortune, official toastmaster, received a radiogram at dinner last night from the Havana committee of arrangements announcing today's program and read it to the party, it was cheered to the echo.

After having been thrilled by seeing the Florida coast from Palm Beach to the keys, including the skyscrapers of Miami which loom out of the horizon as we come close enough to see the color of architecture and tilings, the pilgrims, sunburned and happy, prepared for today's landing.

The deck steward was swamped with requests for Cuban postage stamps and souvenir postcards. Two-thirds of the party spent the late afternoon and evening writing cards or letters to folks at home and filling out blanks for the immigration authorities in Cuba.

Havana, referred to on shipboard as "Little Paris," has been discussed for days. All sorts of side trips and shopping tours were planned during our little more than two days' stay. Most everyone plans to buy cigars and perfumery as gifts for loved ones at home. We expect to sail from Havana for Port Antonio at midnight Friday.

NEW ENGLAND 'BUILT UP U. S.,' SAYS MOORE

New England built up the United States through its furnishing of money, opportunity, men and brains, Alexander P. Moore, former ambassador to Spain, now ambassador to Peru and owner of the Boston Daily Advertiser and New York Mirror, declared today at a luncheon of the Crosscup-Pishon Post, American Legion, in the Hotel Bellevue.

The publisher chided Boston for its modesty, asserting that the Hub "does not honk its horn" sufficiently because it really does not understand its greatness.

Of advertising men, and the Crosscup-Pishon Post is composed mainly of advertising men, Mr. Moore said that they, with the newspapers, have made possible the prosperity of the nation, a prosperity that does not exist in Europe because advertising is not recognized in its full worth overseas.

NEWSPAPERS ESSENTIAL

"The newspapers of the country owe much to the advertising men. The country owes much to the newspapers. And it is up to the newspapers of the United States to protect and preserve the nation, although they are prone to criticize too harshly the men in high public office, thereby causing prospective national executives to think twice before seeking office.

"Newspapers make business. They bring customers to stores. They are essential to prosperity."

The former ambassador to Spain cited the situation in Madrid where, he said, in a city of some 1,000,000 population there is not a single department store, mainly because advertising is not understood and valued in Spain.

LUNCHEON HONORS MOORE

The luncheon was given in honor of Mr. Moore principally as a means of introduction to his newspaper colleagues. There were present also, as guests: Raymond Hitchcock, the comedian; A. H. Marchant, advertising manager of the Boston Post; Edward R. Mahoney, managing editor of the Boston Evening American; Walter L. Thomas, advertising director of the American; Charles H. Taylor, of the Boston Globe; Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley, and Lieut. Richard E. Cobb, who flew Mr. Moore to Boston from Mitchel Field, N. Y., for the luncheon.

FAVOR FUND TO IMPROVE EAST BOSTON AIRPORT

The resolve of Senator Robert E. Bigney of South Boston authorizing the State department of public works to spend $8000 in repairing the sea wall at Castle Island was today reported favorably by the Senate ways and means committee. The same committee also favored the bill to permit Boston to appropriate money for the improvement of the East Boston airport.

"Mary's" Mother

MRS. PICKFORD

Mother of Mary Pickford, screen star, and herself former actress, is dead at Los Angeles home after lingering illness.

LEGLESS GIRL IS GIVEN $17,500 BY JURY

the golden-haired little girl stepped upon the tracks.

She stepped back quickly, but the oncoming car struck her, severing one leg and mangling the other. Then followed weeks of pain at the Somerville hospital and the final home-coming with both legs amputated at the knee.

"Life was a great adventure to her when she first tried to use the artificial limbs," her grandmother said. "The doctor insisted on her walking without cane or crutches and she feared to trust her weight upon them. For months we walked behind her until she gained confidence to walk alone.

After that first unaided trip across the room she was determined not to be helped again. She even puts the artificial legs on and takes them off herself, no matter how tired she is from playing all day."

Cautiously one blue eye appeared from under the blanket. Eleanor was interested, for her grandfather was telling how she played most of the games that other children of her age play at school.

"Though it twisted our hearts to see it, we were proud when she could use her new legs to walk from our house to her own home almost as well as natural ones," he said. "She does not pine for the games that she cannot play, but sits quietly watching. But what will she think when she is a young lady and sees the others dancing?"

Eleanor goes to school on Summer st. and is one of the brightest pupils in her class in the first grade.

"She is too young yet to know what she wants to be educated for, but her happy disposition and brilliant mind will make it possible to train her for a useful, happy life," Mrs. Story added.

"Her father was made guardian of the award, which is the biggest ever paid by the Boston Elevated for one injury to one individual. By the time she is old enough to choose her vocation there will be enough accrued interest to make it a tidy sum, for which we are all so grateful."

G. O. P. WOMEN APPLAUD PRAISE FOR COOLIDGE

Asking his audience to remember that President Coolidge has vigorously prosecuted violators of the law without fear or favor, Wellington Wells, president of the Massachusetts Senate, drew long applause today from the Women's Republican Club at a Copley-Plaza luncheon.

The guest of honor was Col. Wilfia mF. Donovan, assistant attorney-general of the United States.

"Our kind of government is dependent for its existence on the constant attention of all the citizens," he said. "The chief problem now is to regulate economic affairs without taking freedom from the individual."

DEATH COMES TO MOTHER OF MARY PICKFORD

Los Angeles, March 22 (AP)—Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, mother of Mary Pickford, famous screen star, died shortly after midnight today. She had suffered from a lingering illness.

Miss Pickford was at the bedside of her mother at the latter's Beverly Hills home when she died. A cancerous growth was reported to have been the cause of her death. She was 55 years old.

Mrs. Pickford, whose name formerly was Charlotte Smith, was the mother of three motion picture stars —Mary, Lottie and Jack Pickford.

Mrs. Pickford was born in Toronto, Can., September 3, 1872, and was married there to John Smith of that city, when she was 19 years old. Her three children were born in the Canadian city.

Jack and Lottie Pickford also were at their mother's home.

Mrs. Pickford, after the death of her husband, entered commercial life in Toronto for a short period, but finally turned to the stage. The children all acted in Toronto and Mrs. Pickford played for some time with Chauncey Olcott.

After Mary became known as a screen actress her mother gave up her own career and devoted her time to the interests of her children.

QUIGLEY PLANS FIGHT; FLAYS PARTY HEAD

Claiming that he is one of the original "Smith men" and was one of the hardest Smith workers from Massachusetts in the 1924 Democratic convention, Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea, in a statement today, voiced indignation at Democratic State Committee Chairman Charles H. McGlue's failure to place Quigley on the slate for presidential delegate-at-large.

Mayor Quigley asserted that he will "win anyway," despite "McGlue's public statement that I alone of the more than 100 candidates will be denied the right of having my choices indicated on the ballot."

"My services four years ago," said Quigley, "entitle me to consideration now. I believe that my fellow-Democrats may well leave one of the slate at home and send me to Houston in his stead. I do not think the Democratic voters of Massachusetts will allow Mr. McGlue to dictate to them as to how they will vote at the primaries."

BUTCHER BILL ROW LEADS TO ARREST FOR BIGAMY

Worcester, March 22 (AP)—When Charles Podgovog, 43, refused to give his wife money last Friday to pay the butcher, he started an argument which led to his arrest today on a charge of bigamy. Mrs. Podgovog left the house with her children, but returning unexpectedly claims she intercepted mail addressed to her husband with a picture of two boys and a woman in a Russian costume. Police questioned the man and because of what he told them charged him with bigamy. The couple were married eight years ago.

Stefansson on Meat Diet 'Leaps' From Bed in A.M.

New York, March 22 (AP)—After three weeks on an all-meat diet, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, declares he feels more optimistic, ambitious and energetic, and ascribes this to his dietary experiment.

Stefansson said when he started the experiment on February 26 he felt "lackadaisical on getting up in the morning," but that now he felt like "jumping out of bed and getting right to work."

The test was conducted at Bellevue Hospital, under auspices of the Russell Sage Foundation of Pathology, which has been studying diets since 1913.

MUSSOLINI FOE ESCAPES FROM EXILE AT LIPARI

Mentone, France, March 22 (AP)—Information from Italy says that Domizio Torrigiani, head of Italian Free Masonry, has accomplished the difficult feat of escaping from the Lipari islands. Torrigiani, condemned to five years' confinement on the islands last April as an enemy of the Mussolini administration, is believed to be in Corsica.

All ships except police vessels are barred to the islands and it took four months for Torrigiani to effect his escape. Loyal Masons are understood to have aided him in getting away.

BUSHNELL'S PLEA FREES WAR HERO

"Pure Alcohol" Killing Drunks, Says Bigelow

CREW TELL OF BATTLE FOR LIFE

New York, March 22—A tale of a terrific battle with the sea, with clogged pumps hopelessly attempting to stem torrents entering through opened seams, was told today by six members of the rescued crew of the four-masted schooner John C. Hildebrand of Boston.

With Capt. T. A. Larrabee, skipper of the schooner, the crew were taken off by the Coast Guard destroyer Roe, just before the Hildebrand slipped to the bottom about 100 miles east of Sandy Hook.

The story of the foundering of the Hildebrand was told by Capt. Larrabee and the crew at Clifton, S. I., where the Roe, in command of Capt. J. E. Sitka, docked today.

The schooner left Norfolk nine days ago with a cargo of coal for Eastport, Me., and according to Capt. Larrabee, was battered by heavy seas from the start.

Late yesterday afternoon, according to the captain, seams in the bow of the schooner opened under the terrific pounding she was receiving and the craft began to take in water.

Capt. Larrabee said the pumps were started, but soon became so clogged with coal dust that they were useless. With the schooner beginning to go down by the head an S O S was sent out and the Roe started for the scene under forced draught.

When the destroyer sighted the crippled schooner, she was almost under water, with the crew still clinging to her rigging, hoping against hope that aid would come before they were forced to take to the boats.

Despite the heavy seas, they were taken aboard the destroyer, which then stood by until the Hildebrand slid, bow first, into the depths at 3:40 this morning.

VET FREED FROM JAIL SENTENCE

A plea for leniency, made by Dist.-Atty. Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County, today won freedom for Basil S. Quirk, war veteran of O st., South Boston, who last September was given a sentence of a year for breaking and entering and larceny.

At the request of the district attorney, who cited Quirk's splendid war record, his previously blameless life and the need of his suffering family, Judge Hugo A. Dubuque, in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court, revoked the young man's sentence and placed him on probation.

District Attorney Bushnell also appealed to persons interested in the reform of first offenders in behalf of Quirk, asking that they find him suitable employment so that he may support his wife and three children.

KEEPS IN GRATITUDE

With tears in his eyes the veteran expressed his thanks to judge and district attorney, and declared he would prove himself worthy of the confidence they placed in him.

Last September Quirk was convicted of breaking and entering and larceny from a house in Belmont and was sent to jail for a year. District Attorney Bushnell began an investigation of the case, after receiving a letter from the man's wife a month ago.

The district attorney told the court the letter revealed pitiful conditions, with Mrs. Quirk attempting to support herself and three small children on $9 a week received from the city. There was also illness in the family, he said.

The investigation revealed that Quirk was a pawn in the hands of another man, Bushnell said, with a previously unstained record. When only 19 years old Quirk succeeded in enlisting in the army after four rejections, the district attorney said, and fought with the Third Division in numerous major battles.

SHELL SHOCK VICTIM

While under treatment in a base hospital, on being told that his wounds were such that he would never engage in active service again, Quirk took the uniform of a dying soldier, leaped from a window and rejoined his outfit at the front, Bushnell stated.

After his discharge from the service he suffered from recurrent shell shock, at which time he is abnormal.

"I wish to appeal to all those persons interested in reform," the district attorney said, "or who claim to be interested in the reform of first offenders, to do something in the way of finding this man suitable employment. Because of his condition he should have something to do in the open. I will be glad to hear from any of the people who claim to be interested in the reform of first offenders, who could be of service in this case."

REPORTS ON TESTS AT HARVARD

Not poison liquor, but the excessive use of pure alcohol is the cause of the vast majority of deaths in recent years from alcoholism.

The State Department of Public Health has reached this conclusion after an exhaustive study of many of the cases reported and through analysis of thousands of liquor samples.

The "excessive use" of the stimulant comes from the uncertainty of the supply and the "drink-it-while-you've-got-it state of mind," according to Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow. "It results in acute intoxication and death," the commissioner observed.

GREATER TOXICITY.

He takes issue with an article recently published by one of the leading insurance companies in which it was declared that "the rising alcoholism death rate in this country since 1920 cannot, in our judgment, be explained by increased consumption of 'hard' liquor, as compared with wartime and pre-wartime years," and "that the reason must lie, we think, in the greater toxicity of the alcoholic liquors which are now used too generally throughout the country."

Nothing tending to show an increase in extraneous substance in the samples analyzed, Dr. Bigelow said, has been discovered.

TESTS BY HARVARD MEN.

To dispose of the possibility that there might be developed a new substance, highly toxic, in the preparation of illicit liquor, and not detected in the routine analysis, Dr. Bigelow disclosed that tests have been made with various animals by Dr. Reid Hunt, professor of pharmacology at the Harvard medical school.

"It was found that their toxicity was closely parallel to their content of ethyl alcohol, and in no case were there indications of the presence of substances significantly more poisonous than ethyl alcohol," he said.

EXAGGERATED REPORTS.

He explained that experiments were made purely for the purpose of discovering a toxic substance and from a health standpoint.

"The results of chemical and pharmacological examination suggests that as far as Massachusetts is concerned such factors as wood alcohol, menthanol, furfiral and other extraneous substances have been very much exaggerated and what is killing people now who die of alcoholism is what killed them back in the days of the ethyl alcohol, 'grain' alcohol, or 'pure' alcohol," the report stated.

Another part of the report says: "Ethyl alcohol is, has been and always will be a poison which cannot be tolerated by a body in excess, and in the vast majority of cases alcohol deaths in Massachusetts are apparently due to excessive use of 'good, pure alcohol.'"

Dr. Bigelow asserts that the studies show how groundless, in general, is the resentment against the enforcement agencies of the government in poisoning the liquor supply, so far as Massachusetts is concerned.

YOUTH SENT TO CONCORD AT FATHER'S REQUEST

At the request of his father, whose attorney told the court that the parent had no control over his son, William H. O'Neil, 26, of Wood st., East Milton, was sentenced to an indefinite term at Concord Reformatory when he was arraigned in Municipal Court today on a charge of passing worthless checks. Special Officer Philip Dodge was the complainant.

The attorney told the court it was the wish of the defendant's father that the young man be sentenced.

WARRANT FOR MISSING BELMONT AUTO DEALER

The Watertown police today obtained from the Waltham court a warrant for the arrest of Otto F. Morgan, missing Belmont automobile dealer, charging him with the larceny of several thousands of dollars from the Union Market National Bank of Watertown.

Lieut. Riley, in charge of the case, admitted there were no new clues, as to the whereabouts of the man whose body was sought in the Charles river on a suicide theory, after his car had been found nearby. Scores, including firemen and policemen, learned they will have to buy automobiles, although they signed leases only to "help out" Morgan. He had discounted about 200 of the leases, most of them fraudulent.

TWOHIG FIGHTS HIGHER PIER RATES IN BOSTON

Continuation of the protest wharfage charges at piers controlled by the State with an investigation by the Department of Public Works as to the advisability of changing proposed rates effective April 1, is provided for in a resolve filed with the Legislature today by Representative James J. Twohig of South Boston.

Twohig declared the proposed rates are 25 cents a ton higher on rail freight, an increase which will drive from the port of Boston many shipping concerns now doing business here.

Great Story on Life; Gripping As a Novel; Fascinating As a Movie

CHAPTER 33

I SMILE when you tickle me. I cannot help it; it is a reflex. If you smile back, I will learn to smile when you smile. The drive in life is hunger. The action in life is to secure food and mates to satisfy hunger. Play is preliminary action—trying out, testing the capacity of range of action. It differs from the reactions of adult life in that it lacks the consummation response or adjustment. The action has no ulterior motives.

Play is not an instinct; nor is it unique in human beings or identical in the human race. It is a form of acquired behavior. The games I play as child or adult will be conditioned by my bents and especially by social environment. What is played, who plays it, how it is played, all depend on learned habits of individual response and can only be interpreted in terms of situations, stimulus, and response.

The stimulus back of play—whether of puppies, children, or adults—is a motor mechanism which was built on action, grows with action, and in childhood grows best by action.

Weeding the garden or picking potato bugs is action. But there are drawbacks. Repetition—same stimulus, same response; and no end in sight—there seem to be so many weeds, so many bugs; if they are to be cleared out, the pace must be kept up. That means that the impulse to respond to other stimuli that may rise and do keep rising up to beckon the child aside must be repressed.

PLAY is generally actions of several kinds at the same time. Even in a game of marbles a half dozen different activities may function together. The difference between marbles and professional baseball is chiefly years. the men have their game better organized, are better players because more habituated to it, and stick closer to their game. But sometimes their game becomes lost in a fight with words, catcalls, and pop bottles.

Margie making mud pies and mother making apple pies further illustrate the difference between play of children and of adults, and between play and work. Mother's work ends when the pie leaves the oven. Margie may grow stale over her pie before she has made one, or she may go right on making pies until she uses up all the mud. Her impulse is for action rather than for consummation. She will stop when the impulse for mud-pie action is replaced by another with more pull. Such as: "Let's play dolls," or "Dinner is ready."

GEN. CHANG IS KILLED IN PLOT

Tientsin, China, March 22 (AP)—Diplomatic circles here today viewed the murder of Gen. Chang Shao-Tseng, former premier and an outstanding military leader, as a political assassination.

Gen. Chang was shot by three unidentified Chinese last night in a Chinese restaurant on Chinese territory while he was attending a "Sing-song" girl entertainment. The men escaped and one suspect was arrested later.

Since fleeing from Peking with former President Li Yuan-Hung in 1923, Gen. Chang had been living in retirement in the British concession here. He was known however, to have connection with Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang, commander of the national peasants' army, and the Kouminlang. From this it was adduced that he was the victim of a political assassination owing to alleged recent anti-Mukdenite activities.

CONSTIPATION CAUSES TROUBLE

But there's a way to safe relief

It's so easy to become constipated these days—what with soft food, lack of exercise, modern rush and hurry. So easy, indeed, that many of the worst sufferers don't even realize what's the trouble with them.

They go through life—half-way sick, half-way tired. From time to time, they resort to drugs and pills. But these afford no more than temporary relief. Often enough, they only increase the trouble.

Headaches, sleeplessness, backaches, sallow cheeks, fading hair—these are all symptoms of this widespread affliction. Sooner or later it leads to serious disease. Stop dangerous constipation! Stop habit-forming drugs! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN points the way to natural relief. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN because it is 100% bran — 100% effective. A health cereal to serve with milk or cream — fruits or honey added. Sprinkle into soups. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Conant Backs Farm Jail for Drug Fiends

Long sentences to specialize institutions and plenty of farm work in the open air would help remedy the present narcotic drug situation in this country, according to Richard K. Conant, commissioner of public welfare in Massachusetts.

He indorses the bill of Congressman Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania.

Under the terms of this bill the United States Government is to establish two federal farms for the treatment and care of drug addicts now confined as prisoners in federal institutions.

Commissioner Conant has added his name to the long list of leading social welfare experts of New England who have indorsed Congressman Porter's plan to rehabilitate drug addicts.

"I am very glad to indorse the idea that the United States Government establish institutional farms for drug addicts," said Commissioner Conant.

"We in Massachusetts have struggled with this situation without success.

"It is impossible to secure the voluntary co-operation of the drug addict for a long enough period of time to effect his rehabilitation. Short terms at an institution are of little avail. Courts are not disposed to sentence drug addicts for long enough periods to effect a cure.

"If the federal government could set up specialized institutions which would provide farm work and other open air work for long periods of time, and if the law could include adequate provisions for imposing sufficiently long sentences, it would go a long way toward remedying the present situation."

London, March 22—A Boston man, Atty. Day Kimball, former assistant attorney-general of Massachusetts, is counsel for two officers, Capt. Kenneth Dewar and Commander H. M. TWO DRIVERS INJURED IN ROXBURY AUTO CRASH

Two drivers were injured today when their automobiles collided at Harold and Townsend sts., Roxbury, both cars overturning. Sawtin Abraham, 18, of Elm Hill st., Chelsea, went to City Hospital as an out patient and was treated for contusions of the left elbow, shoulder and back.

RADIO AIRPLANE HOPS AGAIN

Pittsburgh, March 22 (INS)—The New York American radio plane Toledo Leadership took off today for Columbus. Stops were planned at Cincinnati and St. Louis today.

The muddy condition of the field prevented a take-off yesterday and the five members of the party experimented with the plane's new telephone and telegraph radio set. Local radio fans and operators reported perfect reception of the ship's massages sent to land stations while the plane hovered above Pittsburgh on Tuesday.

When the plane had reached an altitude of 5000 feet over the city, messages from the ship were rebroadcast through KDKA, the powerful Westinghouse station here, into the domestic radio receiving sets of thousands of home office buildings in the Pittsburgh area.

What causes this "YELLOW MASK"?

Is there no way to remove it? Yes, by this new method.

When your teeth have a yellowish tinge—and faithful brushing has failed to remove it—here is the cause:

In your saliva is a "liquid cement." It flows ceaselessly over the teeth. And like all cement, it clings — then hardens slowly. Soon the natural whiteness of your teeth is enshrouded by a thin, glassy mask. Tobacco, food and coffee stain this mask an unbecoming yellow.

Old-fashioned dentifrices fail to remove this repellent yellow mask—you know that from experience. For, in truth, there is only one substance that will—a substance foremost dentists use for cleaning teeth. It is known as "Tri-Calcium Phosphate." Therefore, to regain the lost splendor of that glistening white enamel you must brush your teeth with a tooth paste containing this magic substance.

Which means—ORPHOS Tooth Paste. For the makers of ORPHOS succeeded, where others failed, in composing a pleasant, tasty tooth paste from "Tri-Calcium Phosphate." We invite you to try it. To banish that "yellow mask". To observe beauty effects in teeth that bewitch and delight.

Without harm to the softest enamel—for "Tri-Calcium Phosphate" is enamel's best friend or a dentist wouldn't use it. Buy your first tube of ORPHOS today—or mail coupon below for FREE 20-time Tube.

Runyon Takes Great Fancy to Phil Scott

By DAMON RUNYON

WHY, bli' me, if this Shuffling Phil Scott, the semiupright heavyweight from dear old England, didn't do very well up at St. Nick's Monday night. Very well, indeed. You'd be surprised.

Shuffling Phil dusted off Mons. Pierre Charles, the 211-pound Belgian with the sad, sad pan, who was imported in bulk by Mons. Gustavus Wilson, former trainer of Mons. Georges Carpentier, the well-known Orchid Man, of France.

In the process, Shuffling Phil was on the canvas only once, and I am assured by his American agent, Mr. [illegible]

The custom is for English heavyweights to dip their tights in the resin one or more times during an exposition of the art propounded by the Marquis of Queensberry. I am told that this custom was inaugurated by Mr. Jim Figg, of England, a couple of centuries back.

Shuffling Phil Scott neglected it [illegible] he went back to England not long [illegible]

Mr. Johnston, the Old Boy Bandit, [illegible] weight salute is that most English heavyweights are non-upright. He says that in the olden days in England the resin used on ring floors was very crude, and often very sticky, so when a heavyweight dipped his tights, per custom, the tights not infrequently adhered to the resin.

THE heavyweight being inside the tights naturally adhered also, and as he couldn't release himself [illegible] his tights, and this was [illegible] deemed most unseemly [illegible] weight would get counted out rather than commit a social error.

I noticed that Mr. Johnston care- [illegible] it wasn't the same adhesive brand they employed at Madison Square Garden the night Shuffling Phil fought Knute Hansen.

And, by the way, Mr. Johnston dipped in salute with Shuffling Phil Monday night. Mr. Johnston is also English born, you know. He left on the floor of St. Nick's the imprint of his pistol pockets. Shuffling Phil took a count of two. Mr. Johnson took four. Mr. Johnston came up full of fight. Dashing a goblet of water in his own face to revive himself, he told Shuffling Phil to keep shuffling. The crown can now have no kick against either of them.

Mr. Johnston [illegible] doon, of the boxing commission, who sat near [illegible] congratulated Mr. Johnston on the way he keeps his age [illegible] doesn't know, of course [illegible]

MR. JOHNSTON'S interest in Shuffling Phil [illegible] has 10 per cent. American [illegible] of the terrible Sharkey [illegible] 4 per cent. Mex. of [illegible] or whatever the [illegible]

Then he has [illegible] of Michael McTigue [illegible]

[illegible] radio immediately following Shuffling Phil's triumph. Mr. Johnston said in part, as follows, to wit, paragraph, quote:

"Mr. Rickard need not look any further for an opponent for Mr. Gene Tunney. He is right here now."

"You don't mean Mons. Pierre Charles, do you?" anxiously inquired Mons. Francois Villon Skene, the poet of passion, who was doing his journalistic stunt at the ringside.

"No, no, no, no, no, no, no, no, no, no, no," replied Mr. Johnston, impatiently. "I mean OUR PHILIP!"

IN a way Mr. Johnston was stealing Mons. Gustavus Wilson's stuff. Mons. Wilson expected to make that [illegible] cent. But at the mo[illegible] I regret to report that Mons. Wilson was engaged in caulking up dives and sundry leaks in Mons. Pierre Charles.

TRIBE EXPECTS HIGH POSITION THIS YEAR

will make the club a really dangerous outfit at all times especially where the fences are close to the batting nest. Lester made an auspicious start with the Tribe, whacking out a double for himself in his first game.

He bounced a liner off the canvas fence in left field, the second hit of the kind that has been made in eight games here. He also hoisted two pretty solidly smacked flies to the outfield and dashed in back of the pitcher's box to make a nifty play on the only hard chance that came his way.

The young man from the Cardinals is tickled to death with his shift to the Braves. He was so anxious to get down to business that he [illegible] a night train here from Avon Park, a tough ten-hour ride. When a ball player does that it means something.

Young Mister Bell is in fine health and spirits. He weighs five pounds more than he did at any time last season and he has been training for a couple of weeks. He was handed a royal welcome by the gang and fitted right into the happy picture that one sees down here this spring.

"I'll tell the world I'm glad to be a Brave," he informed your correspondent. I am tickled to be back with Hornsby again. That's what I have wanted ever since Rog left the Cardinals. He made me whatever kind of a ballplayer I am, and I'm sure that with him around, I'll be able to get in there and do things. And I know Boston fans are fair. They don't ride players the way the rooters do in some cities, especially the players on the home club.

"I know the real baseball spirit when I see it. We had plenty on the Cards in '26 That carried us through. This Brave team reminds me of that club. Everybody is happy and hustling and there should be a lot of fireworks when the team gets into the race."

Jack will send two of his regulars after this final game with the Yanks today, leaving Kent Greenfield and Bob Smith ready for that one. He, the Mgr., would like to pick off the last one to make sure of getting the edge in the spring series with all the big leaguers. The Braves still have four games with the Athletics and as many with the Brooklyn Dodgers out ahead.

Thus far the Braves have won five, lost three and tied one, which is good enough for any club in training. It seems likely now that Slattery will retain as pitchers Kent Greenfield, Joe Genewich, Bob Smith, Henry Wertz, Charlie Robertson, Foster Edwards, Ed Brandt, Bunny Hearn, Art Mills and Art Delaney.

FRESHMAN CANDIDATES CALLED OUT AT B. U.

The first call for Boston University freshman baseball candidates has been issued and the men will report tomorrow. They will not, however, start practicing until warmer weather arrives.

By BOBBY JONES

National Amateur, British Open and Southern Open Champion

ALMOST always it seems that the short game is the hardest part of golf for a beginner to learn. If he is reasonably strong and active he will soon become able to hit the ball well enough off the tee and through the fairway. But the delicate little strokes around the hole—the short pitches, chip shots, and putts—still will mystify him.

Not long ago, I played with a friend who has been playing golf for several years but is still in the class I have mentioned above.

I remember particularly his play on the 15th hole. The hole measures something like 500 yards, and my friend had covered all but 30 of those yards with two fine shots. From that point he required six more to hole out, giving him an eight for the hole, a seemingly impossible score, especially since he became involved in no unusual difficulties.

Usually the 90-to-100 player wastes a good many strokes within a 40-yard radius of the hole. A few in that class are really good putters, and a few more are accredited good putters because they have a few good days. But for the most part the high-handicap man has little idea what it is he is trying to do when he is on the green or barely off.

IN playing a chip-shot or putt, the range or speed of the rolling ball is most important. The ball must be struck a true blow every time if there is to be any means of controlling its run.

To top or half-top this one, to hit the turf behind the next, soon produces an uncertainty which leaves the player in a quandary as to how hard he should swing his club. If no two shots are struck the same way, he is absolutely helpless in adjusting the force of his blow.

A lot has been said and written about the part played by the wrists in executing a chip-shot or putt. Each of these strokes is often described as being [illegible] with the wrists. Following this advice, or possibly because of a natural inclination to scoop the ball, the player swings his run-up club or his putter, from start to finish without moving his arms.

The segment or arc therefore, described by his clubhead is of a very small radius—descending sharply and ascending sharply. There is then only one point at which he can hit the ball when the club will strike it properly, and that point is [illegible]

If the stroke is not exact—the lowest point in the path of the clubhead [illegible] somewhat [illegible] quickly, will half-top or top the shot.

THE cure, of course, is to take the ball while the club is descending and to flatten the path of the club at the bottom. By this I mean that in playing a chip or putt, the club should [illegible] near the ground, having traveled from the impact almost horizontally instead of abruptly upward.

[illegible] In the first place, it increases the margin for error [illegible] head remains long [illegible] of the ball, and in the second place, there is less likelihood that the face of the club will be turned [illegible]

Now, as to what to do in order to "flatten the arc." As I have de- [illegible]

[illegible] the clubhead to finish low it is only necessary to allow both hands and arms to go forward with the club as the ball is struck. The motion does not need to be forced. It will take place naturally enough if the left arm be relaxed.

This does not [illegible] it is incorrect to say that the short chips and putts are played entirely with the wrists [illegible] practically no arm motion throughout the stroke until the ball is hit.

Carrigan Forces Start Trip North After Today's Game With Giants

By JOE CASHMAN

Bradenton, Fla., March 22—The Red Sox start packing up for their march through Georgia after the game with the Giants here this afternoon.

[illegible] leave tonight for [illegible], where they will play on [illegible], and the regulars will follow immediately after their game with Baltimore here tomorrow, being carded to play in the Georgia city on Saturday.

Joe Cashman

The entire party will stay in Savannah until Monday morning when the squad will be split, some going on to Augusta for a 10-[illegible] who have been tried and found wanting going direct to [illegible], to be disposed of later.

[illegible] the first swing of [illegible] are pitchers [illegible] Stoker, [illegible] and [illegible] Connolly and Out-[illegible]

Connolly and [illegible] show promise of [illegible] in time, and [illegible] probably be attached to [illegible]. [illegible] others are due to be released [illegible].

FINE TRAINING PERIOD

Manager Carrigan is perfectly satisfied with the way his charges have rounded into form in Bradenton, and it is likely that the Sox will return here next spring.

The weather has been ideal for the past month, the training and living quarters have been above criticism, and the natives have done everything in their power to make the visit of the Sox enjoyable.

As a result the [illegible] squad is in [illegible] both mentally and physically, and if conditions in [illegible] as good, it should be [illegible] any other club at the start of the race.

The regulars will face the Giants again this afternoon [illegible] since [illegible] are [illegible] to [illegible] the Sox stand a [illegible] of evening the count with the McGrawmen.

[illegible] contests are carded with the New Yorkers in Augusta [illegible] next Monday and Tuesday, so the Sox are very anxious to win to [illegible] feel that they will improve enough in the next few days to clean up in the Georgia games.

Coolidge Asked to Help Olympic Fund

New York, March 22 (AP)—President Coolidge, the governors of states and the mayors of various cities will be asked to proclaim seven days in April Olympic Fund Week in order [illegible] contributions to the [illegible] needed to send the American Olympic team to Amsterdam this summer.

[illegible] A. [illegible], president of the Metropolitan A. A. U., announced yesterday [illegible] association on April [illegible] would make the first payment of [illegible] for the charter of the S. S. Roosevelt which will carry the team abroad.

WILLIAMS ELECTS TWO ATHLETIC LEADERS

Williamstown, March 22—Captains for two 1929 winter athletic teams at Williams College have been elected.

Study of Turf Very Essential--Mrs. Horn

By MIRIAM BURNS HORN
Women's National Golf Champion

THE proper execution of iron shots requires, in my opinion, the finest technique of any part of the game. Naturally that classification "irons" is a broad statement because of its scope, but nevertheless the play of any one iron is an art in itself.

A wood shot or a drive is the same the world over. The ball is teed either on sand or wooden tee, according to individual taste, and the shot does not vary.

But each different iron varies to some extent and the most exacting judgment is required as to what club to use and when. There are so many circumstances which change the play even with the same club.

A person must know and understand when and when not to [illegible] that how to play a shot off of hard soil or soft wet turf, the play in a sandy country and that from the various kinds of grass.

THERE are bent, blue grass, clover and Bermuda fairways, all of which demand their own method of execution. The easiest for me to manage is bent. Here the lies are close. One can take turf or not, as one pleases. There is no interference.

Next in line is blue grass when one obtains [illegible] the best lies to be found. The ball sits up fairly well and seldom is the stroke a hard one to play. [illegible] despised by [illegible] clover.

It is very difficult to play a [illegible] wood [illegible] and even [illegible] [illegible] power [illegible] [illegible] deal [illegible]

[illegible] but there seems no way to eliminate it.

WORST of all is Bermuda grass, so prevalent in [illegible]. It is tough and grows in a [illegible] mat. When the [illegible] into it, [illegible] stops. [illegible] where it grows [illegible] to take [illegible]

It makes [illegible] exceedingly [illegible] the ball [illegible] shot off entirely.

For the average [illegible] for the experienced [illegible] ter of study and [illegible] to play all the various [illegible] It takes time [illegible] himself to [illegible]

For that reason it is well [illegible] several days [illegible] or any important event [illegible] purpose of studying the course from [illegible] angles.

The person who attempts [illegible] well at first [illegible] may find himself unpleasantly surprised [illegible] discover a situation which never before has confronted him.

Martha Lee's Ideas for April Fool Luncheon

Martha Lee radio chat as broadcast from Station WLOE.

MARCH is rapidly blowing the way to All Fools Day, and I wonder if you have given a thought to an April Fool Luncheon or supper party? Everyone is really better for a laugh and most of us enjoy the game of "Make Believe," so why not a party, bridge or otherwise—with a supper menu which is not what it seems.

Martha Lee

Here's a suggestion: Floating Island—Cream Puffs Surprise—Nutty Bits—Bouillon Bouche—Brown Bread Sandwiches. Ginger ale.

The Floating Island is soup served in a cocktail glass; the cream puffs are filled with [illegible] and garnished with whipped cream mayonnaise, the "Bouillon Bouche" is a combination of cubes of rhubarb, orange gelatin and banana Bavarian. Booker T. Washington Bavarian may be substituted.

The brown bread sandwiches are fudge cake baked in pound baking powder cans, sliced and put together sandwich fashion with white icing.

The center piece is apparently a [illegible] cake, richly covered with white [illegible] strewn with nuts and decorated with cherries. In reality, it consists of a set of little boxes piled together—each containing an April Fool Gift. Ribbons attached to each box lead to each plate. At the end of the luncheon the cake is cut by pulling the ribbons.

The favors are [illegible] boxes filled with [illegible] and the place cards are old fashioned powder papers filled with sachet.

The linen is dull blue, checked with white, the glassware is white, and the centerpiece is arranged in a blue glass vase. The [illegible] are decorated with orange bands. Each contains a ball [illegible] orange syrup and [illegible] ginger ale serves as appetizer at this party.

Floating Island (Soup)—Three c. shredded lettuce leaves, 1 c. shredded water cress or chopped cucumber, 1 tsp. minced onion, 3 tbsp. rice, 3 tbsp. butter, 4 c. white soup stock, few grains pepper, ½ tsp. salt, few grains nutmeg, 1 c. top milk or light cream, 1 egg yolk.

Melt butter, add onion and rice, saute till the rice is yellowed. Combine with the stock, lettuce and cress and simmer till the rice is soft. Sift and stir in the egg yolk, beaten and mixed with the cream. Stir until hot, but do not boil. Serve with "islands" of whipped egg white seasoned with a little salt.

Cream Puffs Surprise—Split cream puff shells on the side and fill with a salad mixture made of 2 c. finely minced chicken, 1 c. chopped, roasted pecans, almonds and walnuts mixed, [illegible] with cream [illegible] may [illegible]. Serve with a [illegible] of whipped cream [illegible] on with a pastry [illegible] roses.

Cream Puffs—Boil together 1 c. [illegible] ½ tsp. salt and 1-3 c. butter. Add the flour all at once, stirring [illegible] mixture makes a ball. Beat in 4 eggs, one at a time, mixing thoroughly. Drop by small tablespoonfuls on a buttered pan, keeping each 3 inches apart. Bake 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven, 350 to 375 degrees F.

Nutty Bits—Roll olives stuffed with peppers or nuts in orange syrup, then in finely chopped nut meats, any kind.

Into a cream cheese stir 1 tbsp. orange syrup, 1 tbsp. finely chopped dates and 1 tbsp. minced peanuts. Form in marble shaped balls and roll in minced peanuts.

Rhubarb Bouillon—1 tbsp. powdered gelatin, 2 tbsp. cold water, sugar (about ½ cup); 2 c. juice from stewed rhubarb, 3 tbsp. orange juice.

Soften gelatin 5 minutes in cold water. Bring the rhubarb juice to [illegible] add the orange juice [illegible] and sugar to sweeten. Transfer to a pan rinsed with cold water and set aside a few hours to become firm. To serve cut in cubes as bouillon.

Dr. Reed Discusses Pathways to Insanity

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

YOU are doubtless aware that the ratio of insane to sane is rapidly increasing in the United States. An insane person is one whose behavior is more or less out of harmoney with standards of behavior in the society in which he lives. He is said to be insane because he is anti-social. He has departed from the standards of civilization.

A civilized man is an evolution from generations of ancestors behind him who have spent their lives struggling for the control of their primitive emotions, and to do so is second nature with him. The more intellectual the man is the finer and more highly-specialized are the ways along which his life force must run to determine behavior that will satisfy his self-respect, and, consequently, the greater the pressure that the force exercises on his mind.

Now he has not one self-respecting sentiment but many. They are formed at different influences. If these are properly balanced he will be able to control his instincts and use them in a civilized way, but if they are out of balance then sooner or later, when he comes under stress, the instincts will prove too powerful to be properly controlled.

The emotions will not express themselves in a crude direct form, for the man is too highly trained to what one may roughly call respectability, but they will find their expression trying to compel him to break out of rational ways into irrational rather than anti-social conduct. It is only when he is very far gone that he becomes anti-social.

The compulsion neurosis is therefore nearly always the result of some hitch that has occurred in childhood or adolescence in the process of the formation of the various sentiments of self-regard. Probably the most common of these is a failure, at the age of early sexual awakening, to face the new and strange desires and potentialities that arise within the mind and to sublimate them into useful healthy activity.

It is undesirable for an adolescent to express his sex in irregular habits, but it is possibly even more undesirable that he should suppress it and try to pretend that it is not there. The ideal way is that he should express it in love for his parents, teachers and friends, or for one or two individuals among them, and put its energy into his work and play.

Failure to grapple with the sex problem in adolescence inevitably means a deep-seated feeling of self-contempt. This will naturally be kept under by various compensations, but will escort constant pressure until later on it finds an outlet in psychasthenia.

In olden times the psychasthenic was thought and thought himself to be obsessed by an evil spirit, which sat on him and made him do evil things. This is in its essence true, but the evil spirit is his own unregulated self.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Do you think that a pale yellow evening gown is appropriate for a January formal dance?

2—In introducing a young man to a group of men or young women, how should the introduction be handled? Also, a young lady?

3—When a young lady invites a young man to be her escort to a formal dance, should she dance with others, if she is asked to? If this is correct, how should you excuse yourself from your escorts?

A GRATEFUL READER.

1—Indeed I do think that a pale yellow, if it is becoming, is one of the loveliest of shades. I think, especially lovely and effective in the evening. And when pale yellow is becoming it is one of the most flattering of shades that a girl can wear.

2—When you are introducing a young man to a group, introduce him first to the ladies in the group, first to the older women, if there is an appreciable difference in ages among the women. "Mrs. Adams, may I present Mr. Lowell?"—"Mrs. Belding, Mr. Lowell"—"Mrs. Crosby, Mr. Lowell." If there are more ladies in the group, you may, if you do not wish to repeat the name of the gentleman again (and it does become rather awkward), mention only the name of the lady, and then look at the gentleman, so that you can easily indicate him without repeating the name too often: "Mrs. Dean," "Mrs. Edwards," "Miss Fisher."

The important point to remember in group introductions is that the gracious looking at each person as you are making the introduction gives the introduction importance and poise.

After the gentleman has been introduced to all the ladies (the married ones first), introduce him to the gentlemen, and here you need only mention the names, "Mr. Adams, Mr. Lowell"; "Mr. Belding, Mr. Lowell"; "Mr. Crosby, Mr. Dean."

The same is true when introducing the young woman—introduce her first to the women, the married ones first, or the older ones first and then introduce the gentlemen to her.

3—Yes, the young lady would dance with other partners, for that is the point of a dance. When a gentleman comes to ask her for a dance, and she is sitting with her escort, he will, if he is a well bred man, ask her for the dance and then say to her partner, "Do you mind?" or any other polite words that indicate that he is asking the partner's permission. Then, when she accepts, she says to her escort, "Will you excuse us, please?"

This Allston woman says:

"Rinso is such a good all-around household soap that I wonder how I ever managed without it.

"On washday the clothes seem to wash themselves, they get so beautifully white after soaking a while in the rich, thick Rinso suds. I only rub the most soiled pieces a little—there's none of that scrubbing that tires you out so.

"And it's the same with the rest of the cleaning. Rinso makes everything bright and spotless with just half the work."

MRS. M. F. KELLY,
211 Harvard Ave., Allston, Mass.

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this one.

My! I've never seen a whiter wash

yet it wasn't scrubbed—wasn't boiled!

SO wonderfully white! Whiter than ever. You never saw such snowy, gleaming clothes!

And whether you use machine or tub, this Rinso way means much less work. No scrubbing. No need, even, to boil the wash—for Rinso whitens without boiling. Sterilizes, too!

Cleansing, lasting suds!

In hard water or soft, Rinso whips at once into lively, lasting suds that clean, clean, CLEAN. Such thick suds your hands get lost in them! Such creamy, active suds that clothes actually soak whiter than you could scrub them!

Even the worst spots, the hems, cuffs and edges, become snowy with little or no rubbing!

Rinso is so kind to the hands; keeps them from becoming red and washworn. Saves the clothes, too. Rinso contains nothing to harm your very finest cottons or linens. Then, too, clothes washed this way aren't scrubbed threadbare.

Try Rinso! It's all you need on washday—no bar soaps, chips or powders. You get your full money's worth when you buy this granulated soap—it's so compact. Just feel how weighty the package is! For best results, follow easy directions on the box.

It's great in washers, too

More than 32,000 washing machine demonstrators use Rinso...to show their washers at their best. And the makers of 32 popular washers urge women to use Rinso for whiter washes and safety.

"Jerry" by ELENORE MEHERIN

AUTHOR of "CHICKIE"

A Story of Mad Moonlight Kisses and a Wonderful Young Girl

CHAPTER 45.

HEINIE stopped the car near home.

Jerry took off her hat and slumped down against the cushions. She smiled, dreamily—very tired, as Heinie lighted her cigarette.

She recalled Stephanie's plea as she looked in Heinie's long, sallow face. She had always thought him homely. Homely and good and strong.

[illegible] as the brown eyes that were gentle and full of loyalty met hers, she laughed: "Stephanie thinks you handsome, Heinie, she thinks you [illegible]."

Heinie laughed: "Plucky and dear, [illegible]. She probably thinks I'm a grand [illegible] man, too. Is there a real hope for her? I mean for her walking?"

"There should be. I'm sure of it. I won't think that there isn't. That would be just too much. She's more than dear and plucky, Heinie. You have no idea how sound and true she is. In everything. It's unthinkable that she should be helpless for life."

"It [illegible] responsibility on you, [illegible] here. And if she [illegible] to work, Heinie [illegible] dogged quiet, "the whole burden would be on you—eventually. How can you meet it, Jerry?"

This was the bleak picture that oppressed her secret thought—Stephanie helpless, she, Jerry, the loser in love and life, eking out a [illegible] existence for both of them. [illegible] the prospect [illegible]. "What would you do, Jerry?"

[illegible]. A person always gets by—somehow. But that's not going to [illegible]. It certainly shall not!"

"[illegible] no people but you?"

"Marza and me. We're enough."

"Jerry," [illegible], "how are all th[illegible] going with you?"

She gave a wry smile: "I surmise, Heinie, that you inquire thus subtly as to the state of my amours. I've given them all the air. All of them. I'm free, single and foot-loose for any thrill or divilitry."

"You and Saxon are no longer engaged?"

"That's all off, Heinie." Swiftly and with a little fire in her throat. "I'm out to make good on my own—entirely on my own."

"There's no one else now?"

"No one else."

"Jerry, do you think you could ever care for me? Not right away. But in a year or so? Why don't you let yourself think of me? In any kind of a way. I wouldn't expect you to love me—at first. But I think I could do so many things to make you happy. After a while you'd like me."

Heinie brushed a hand over his disorderly black hair. "I suppose a man always thinks that when there's only one girl in the world for him. I feel so sure that I could be the kind of person you'd be bound to love. I'd do things you'd adore. Lately I've thought this, because lately you seem so much sweeter. You seem to be glad when I come. And you never high-hat me any more."

He flushed and turned humble, adoring eyes to hers: "Does it mean anything, Jerry?"

"It means that I think you're a prince, Heinie. And of course I'm glad having you around. I don't know what Stephanie would have done without you. You've no idea how you've colored the days for her. How can I help love that in you, Heinie? Please keep it up. She'd be lost without you.

"But more than anything else, it means that I'd love to see you happy. There's a girl somewhere for you, Heinie, and she'll give you the love you deserve. You wait for her—and you keep your eyes open for her. That's all a fiction about only one girl for one man. Any number of the same type would do. You give her a chance, Heinie.

"And don't think of me. I'm all out of love, and I'm not going to marry or think of it. But I like you like anything."

He sat very quiet—big and loose-limbed and strong. "You want me to keep coming around?"

"Ever so much. Yes."

"Like me enough, Jerry, to call on me if you get in a tight place? I'd [illegible]." And, with an awkward laugh: "I'm a junior partner now. I've plenty on my own account. And wouldn't I love to make things easier for you! I've an idea they're going to be pretty tough. Too tough—"

"I think that would be good for me. I've always wanted to be tested. . . ."

"But if the going is too hard? . . . You won't want Stephanie to suffer. . . ."

"Oh, I'll call on you! . . . Don't worry . . . there's not a shy bone in the whole 208 of mine. You're a dear ole darling——"

• • •

Jerry sat at the living-room table, her back to Marza. She thought of Heinie. And Hugh Hammond. And thinking of these became wild with loneliness.

Would Heinie come to care for Stephanie? Stephanie who was so friendly and true—so naively luring? She pictured the two of them. How fairy-like might be such happiness!

And she pictured herself after they were gone. Alone again with Marza. Marza and she growing old together.

Marzo began walking about the room touching the covers of books. She did this when she was agitated.

"She looked well, didn't she, Jerry?"

"Considering what she's been through."

"She's alive—anyway!"

"Yes—mother, did you arrange for that mortgage?"

"Not quite."

"What do you mean—not quite?"

"Well—they're considering it. You know, we have $12,000 on the place. There was originally $7000. They have so many mortgages. With this five additional it would make $17,000."

Said Jerry dully: "What will we do if they refuse? We can't even pay the hospital bills!"

"They won't refuse. I'll manage. The place warrants the loan—easily. That I should worry for that," said Marza, with a high, half-sobbing laugh. "Worry for that!"

"I could marry Heinie," thought Jerry, lying awake long after midnight. "I could make it wonderful for everyone.

"And what of it? I'll never care for anyone again . . . anyone else."

She went on with a flush: "I could easier marry Hugh."

She was startled to have said this. She remembered Hugh's face with the pleading sweetness like a presence on his mouth . . his gay, whimsical laugh. A nice, happy way to propose. Not making it so deadly serious, as though his happiness were of such monumental importance. Nice, humorous attitude.

She liked Hugh . . . liked him from the beginning.

Suddenly—so suddenly that she felt insulted—hot tears crept to her lids. She laughed contemptuously.

• • •

She was alone in Erskine's shop late the next afternoon. She was hurrying to finish . . . a trip out to the hospital where Stephanie lay.

She turned at a step and for a moment stared mutely. Saxon was coming toward her. He looked thin and eager and very young.

The Fair-Weather Girl

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

WHEN THE WORLD GIVES — AND WHEN IT ASKS!

THERE are certain things that never are old-fashioned, no matter how many times they are called so. Good mothers; honest, upright fathers; children who love their fathers and mothers; the home gathered about a cheerful dinner table; the man or the girl who can be believed; kind hearts; unselfish hearts.

The amiable girl-flower whose warm heart is in her eyes and smile, who gives out perfume on the air of the world and is not always asking "What—WHAT am I going to get back in return?" grows right alongside the brilliant girl-flower who gives only beauty to the world and sometimes not that; a young lady to whom everything sticks, who flaunts and smiles and nods when it does so, but curls up meanly and sulks when the world asks for either pleasure or charity at her hands.

Don't be a Fair-Weather Girl if you want the world to love you. And whereabouts is the girl who doesn't? Don't be the girl who can smile like the rising sun itself when everything is coming her way, when the rest of the world is giving to her, but who goes under a cloud when SHE is asked to give, if you want the part of the world that already does love you to keep on doing it more and more. And which girl is it that doesn't want that, and dread its waning, with every heartstring in her breast?

Don't hold out your hand—EMPTY—all the time. That's to be a beggar, you know. YOU be the girl to drop something into the clinking tambourine that holds the world's kindness, its gifts to one another. And you'll get LOVE back in return.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Dr. Dorsey's Story

that impulse; hang the consequences; of such is the play of children, the day dreams and castles-in-Spain of adults.

It is of little consequence to Margie if her pie is dough or too big or too little for her pie pan. And of less consequence to Johnny when as Heap Big Injun he "scalps" Margie with a celluloid paper cutter. And if Margie plays the game she will pretend to be scalped, catch her "blood" in her apron, and fall down "dead."

WHAT man tied to his job all day does not yearn now and then to be a Deadwood Dick, a Jesse James, or a Captain Kidd. Boys can be. They rob, they hold up trains, they capture ships, they bury and dig up chests of gold. We come from a long line of freebooters. There is nothing in our inheritance which savors of factory, treadmill, or office stool. We must acquire these priceless habits, and often at the loss of our entire original inheritance, which included freedom to fight or run, and everlastingly to fool around.

The sheer joy of being alive, the supreme joy of action in the child! Watch a four-year-old work off his surplus steam. Not only is every muscle of his body in action, but his face and his speech box are at work. It is as though his entire being were so sensitive to excitation that the slightest wind that blows excites him to new effort.

Why not? He has only just discovered the most wonderful, the most excitable, the most insatiable mechanism in the world; a growing human being, himself! That mechanism discovered, the boy or girl now sets out to discover the world, and does easier than later in life. Life's innate curiosity has not yet been crushed, nor has imagination, the capacity to make believe, yet been killed by the "realities" that grown-ups cling to like shipwrecked mariners to a rotting spar in midocean.

Play is the beginning of knowledge. Banging the rattle on the crib or getting a toe in one's mouth is an early lesson in wisdom.

Which means that there is no sharp line between playing Jesse James and being Jesse James. But the child who stops with a stick for a gun will bring down no bigger game in later years than he can kill with a daydream. Those of us who live only in hopes build only castles in our own air.

THE practical application is this: Two boys will pick more than twice as many potato bugs as one and pick them faster if a definite goal is set—a quart, or a quarter. Still better results can be had by setting a phonograph near by with a good rhythmic swing to it—say, the "Sambre et Meuse" or the "Washington Post March." Life hates monotony, but loves rhythm, in heartbeat, in intestinal contraction, in in conceing, in poetry, in music.

But do not expect the child to be like you through mere imitation. The child will smile when smiled at, laugh when others laugh, yell when others yell, look at what others are looking at, listen when others listen, run with or after or from others and duck when others duck. One sheep over the fence, all over. Not a sound at night: one dog barks; in five minutes fifty dogs are yelping. We also applaud, hiss, whistle, yawn, light up, with the crowd. Stimulus and response. Your lighting up is stimulus for the same reaction on my part.

There is also a more direct conditioned stimulus. I cut my finger, it bleeds, it hurts; I wince. You cut your finger; I see blood, I wince. Watch the crowd at a prize-fight. They duck, they dodge, they "Ouch!" They are only less affected by the blows than the receivers, or only less jubilant than the man who delivered them. There is much human nature on exhibition at the prize ring and swimming hole.

Tomorrow—Is It Immoral to Eat With a Knife?—A Close Shave—Social Execution.

Mothers:

Next to the natural laxative from a mother's breast, a plain, old-fashioned preparation is always best for keeping baby's little digestive tract clean and sweet. When your little one doesn't eat, or can't sleep, give him a few drops of plain Castoria. It is purely vegetable, you know. Any doctor will tell you that it is utterly harmless to the youngest infant. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. Yet its gentle influence is soon felt all through the tiny system. Not even castor oil can compete with Castoria and how much better it is to use this milder means of regulating a baby! Never give baby paregoric or similar opiates, because, a few drops of Castoria are just as soothing, and no harm is done. That's the beauty of using pure Castoria; you can give it just as often as you discover any sign of colic, constipation, or diarrhea—or those times when you don't know just what it is that has caused an upset. Only get the genuine Castoria—bearing Fletcher's signature. It isn't expensive, and with every bottle comes the book, "Care and Feeding of Babies"—worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads —Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.

HUSBAND DISTRIBUTES BOOKLETS

Wife Tries Compound

Every year the Pinkham Medicine Company distributes about 30,000,000 booklets from house to house. Mr. Ted Hinsman does this work in Lodi, California. His wife writes: "It was in these little books that I read about so many women being helped by the medicine. I thought I would give it a trial and I can truly say that it has done me good. My neighbors and friends ask me what I am doing to make me look so much better. I tell them that I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt one bit. Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Your druggists sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Leaves Hair Twice as Beautiful

In a few minutes time, your hair is soft, silky and radiant with life, gloss and lustre.

To have beautiful, fresh looking hair is simply a matter of proper shampooing.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

It leaves the hair soft, silky and easy to manage and makes it fairly sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store.

A four-ounce bottle lasts for months.

FRISBY WILL HARNESS NATURE IN NEW PLAN!

Dryfus Doakes, who has indorsed Congressman Frisby's seed plan in behalf of the Anti-Saloon League.

Washington—Although the Government no longer supplies Congressman Frisby with free garden seeds to send to his admirers, he has worked out a self-sustaining seed distribution plan.

"To everyone who sends me 10 cents cents in stamps," announced Mr. Frisby today, "I will send a genuine birdseed.

"This seed should be placed in an incubator and Mother Nature will do the rest, bless her soul!

"I want everyone in this land to have a song bird. What could be more beautiful than the twitter of our little feathered friends, warbling a continuous roundeday of praise to their benefactor, Horace Frisby?"

Sir or Madam:

I am the registered owner of a new eight-cylinder car. It is the prettiest job in the motion picture colony. Last night I drove over to invite some friends for a ride. I collected my guests and was escorting them to the car when I noticed two men about to drive off in it. My party assisted me in stopping them, and it appeared that I had caught two automobile thieves. Imagine my embarrassment when, in front of my guests, I was told by the two men that they were from the finance company.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS
How about another $100?

INFATUATION VS. LOVE

By LUCY LOWELL.

EVERYBODY warned them. Indeed, it seemed there was nobody in all their world who hadn't something protesting to say when word went out that these two were to be married.

"Four-foot" and "Wings" I am going to call them here; and no humor intended I do assure you It just is that these names seem, in a way, to express the personalities of that girl and boy.

"Wings," the girl, never, it seemed to her friends, got wholly down to earth. Ambition kept her aloft a great deal, and dreams lifted her, and beauty and happiness and all sorts of similar things.

Not that she wasn't practical enough and sensible, too; it just was that "Wings" never was intended to be an earth person. The heights have been her native element always.

"Four-foot," on the other hand, couldn't fly if he wished. He is one of those dependable, wholly unimaginative, materialistic but kindly persons, without a grain of adventure in his whole being.

And it was just his unaccountable luck one day to be going along peaceably enough and fall in love with a shadow which fell athwart his path. It was the shadow of "Wings" thrown upon the earth from the height where she flew.

And "Wings" looked down and saw "Four-foot" moving along so dependably and securely, and she, too, fell in love.

"But how in the world do you expect to be happy?" their friends demanded. "What meeting ground have you? He can't fly and you can't keep on earth—better stop and think. Probably it's just the novelty of each other that's got you, for there can't be any real contact here—"

But "Wings" and "Four-foot" thought there could, and so they were married.

And now they have found out the truth—that more than novelty is required for a successful marriage—and they're out of love and talking about divorce.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

EVERY spring love-affair brings you nearer to the end of your illusions—but isn't the scenery wonderful?

* * *

Every year somebody predicts "the passing of the flapper;" but that doesn't prevent a wise wife from taking care to see that her husband is looking the other way when she "passes."

* * *

A spring cold is the acid test of love. But the love that can't survive a girl's red nose is too weak to limp through life with, anyway.

* * *

There are more than fifty-seven ways to lose a man, but the surest is by demanding more devotion than he wants to give, and the quickest is by giving more devotion than he demands.

* * *

The world is full of apparently contented wives, who would not be half so disappointed as their husband's fondly fancy, to wake up and discover that their marriage was just an April fool's joke.

* * *

Perhaps most of these women who try to drive from the back seat got their early training from the little "efficiency experts" who try to run the house from the morris chair.

* * *

Never flatly refuse to kiss him—but sometimes keep him waiting. Love thrives so much better on the stimulant of suspense than on the anaesthetic of memory.

* * *

It has taken evolution thousands of years to make a man out of a monkey—and along comes a little blonde gold-digger and reverses the whole thing in twenty minutes.

* * *

There comes a time in every man's life when he knows exactly what kind of woman will make him perfectly happy, usually about a year after he has married the OTHER kind.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them, 15c, 30c, 60c.

WADLEIGH FOR 5-YEAR STATE RAIL CONTROL

Arthur G. Wadleigh, chairman of the public trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, appearing today before the legislative committee on street railways, urged that if public control is extended "the term be made five years instead of ten years.

He asserted that there would be better patronage under public control but that a return to private operations would not by any means wreck the road.

Under public control, he stated, one-fourth of the road's indebtedness has been paid off, its physical condition restored, full confidence has resulted, and its invested assets and cash are more than $6,000,000.

The average fare of 7¼ cents, he continued, is the lowest in Massachusetts.

"Dividends have paid since 1924 on all but common stock and there is no reason why there should not be payments on that in 1929," he said.

Extension of public control was opposed by L. Sherman Adams, one of the road's large stockholders. He accused the trustees of disfranchising dividends to pay off the funded debt.

PURCHASE OF PULLMAN IS ADVISED IN BOSTON

Hornblower & Weeks are issuing a special analysis of Pullman, Inc., pointing out its speculative and investment interest and recommending its purchase at the market "even in the face of a possible market reaction." They say: "Speculative interest attaches to this stock, due to its splendid qualities for market leadership, the hope of a revival in the equipment industry and a possibility of working arrangement with Baldwin, any of which might serve to bring the stock to the fore. Therefore, we would buy Pullman, Inc., in view of its investment and speculative possibilities, believing that at these levels it could face a sizeable market reaction without yielding much ground."

really great cosmic intelligences would laugh at that, if cosmic intelligence ever laughs.

Ninety representatives, only one senator, accepted Colonel Lindbergh's invitation to fly and see how safe it is. Representatives are younger. The older senators know they will soon have to take a long upward flight, with no return ticket, and are willing to wait for that.

With the latest invention, the flying pilot, looking at a dial controlled by radio, realizes instantly any deviation from the true course mapped out. That instrument, with another telling the plane's height above ground, will make fogs of no consequence, apart from possible collision.

The flier will go through them as easily as a locomotive engineer goes through a dark tunnel.

BRUSH WARNS OF HASTE IN 'L' PROBLEM

situation in the triangle between Park sq., Scollay sq. and South Station to prevent delays in shipment of merchandise, and he advocated slicing the Common as a partial solution.

RAPS HUB "KNOCKERS."

Another feature of his frank address was criticism of men who "rap Boston to outsiders." He called for "as much mutual criticism as you want among yourselves, but don't tell Denver about it."

"Old world travel" also came in for caustic criticism, his recommendation being that Bostonians travel in their own land and, "when you go to New York on business, stay and get acquainted with the business leaders; don't be always rushing back on the 5 o'clock train."

"You have a peril in your rail transportation problem," he said, referring to the Elevated. "And the only way you will have it permanently satisfactory is to recognize that it is a peril. All men in the city should work together toward the ideal solution instead of fighting each other.

"Boston brains and capital built the Santa Fe, Burlington, Union Pacific, Michigan Central and Mexican Central railroads, the stockyards in Kansas City and Chicago, developed the great telephone service, largest corporation in the world, the General Electric Company, United Shoe Machinery Company and United Fruit.

LET R. R. CONTROL GO.

"Boston was ever the leader in education, schools, welfare work, hospitals, music. Boston was first on the job in the Erie canal and built the first big railroad tunnel.

"But Boston let slip from its hands the great steam railroads and control of the great transportation and communication companies by accepting a guarantee on its investment, a 4 per cent guarantee forever.

"About 10 to 15 years ago, however, Boston began to come out of this trance. It undertook analysis In 1913 10,000,000 tons of goods were moved through the port. In 1925 more than 15,000,000 tons were moved.

"The total investment in New England securities has increased in the same period $2,500,000,000. The increase in electric power sold in the same period is $100,000,000.

"But this is by no means enough, nor are any of these figures consistent with what Boston can, should, must and will do.

WOULD ENLIST YOUTH

"If you asked me today the one thing I believed would be most conducive to Boston's future prosperity I would say for the 100 biggest industrial men in town to deliberately, unselfishly, systematically, undertake to help every wage and salary earner in your community to invest a portion of his savings as to participate in growing values.

"One of the strongest features of New York and cities of the west is the implicit confidence and willingness of chief executives to believe in and place real responsibility in youth.

"Another feature which I believe handicaps you in Boston is that there are in the safes and vaults of this city perfectly fabulous fortunes in gilt-edged, high-grade, conservative investments handled by trustees. I do not believe trustee management makes for growth.

"Boost Boston! The constant tendency of talking about New England has given an impression of a Chinese wall around these states. I believe you would do better to first boost your town, then your state and then the United States.

"You never hear a man in Fort Worth boost anything on earth in the beginning but Fort Worth, and the same is true of Atlanta, San Francisco, Kansas City and other cities. You are not hurting New England by boosting Boston."

Radio Dialog

SEVEN instruments of the orchestra will be deployed one by one in front of the WEAF microphone as solo instruments, in tonight's Dodge Brothers' presentation. In addition, Erva Giles, soprano; Vaughn De Leath, contralto, and a male quartet will be heard. This program comes through WEEI at 8 o'clock.

The Hoover Honeymooners will sing the soprano-tenor duet, "That Certain Feeling," from George Gershwin's "Tiptoes" in tonight's 8:30 broadcast through WEAF-WEEI. The male quartet will not sing "Mary Ann" until the next-to-the-last number on the program.

MARGARET VOLAVY, Czech pianist, will be the assisting soloist in tonight's Ampico Half Hour, starting at 8:30 at WJZ, and heard locally through WBZ.

Richard Crooks, one of the most successful young American concert tenors, will be heard in tonight's Maxwell House concert through WJZ-WBZ. His most ambitious number will be Walther's prize song from "Die Meistersinger."

AT least one national manufacturer is getting away from the chain program idea and is picking his own station outlets. The Williams Oil-O-Matic Heating Corporation, sponsor of the King Comfort Hour, heard through WBZ on Tuesday nights, has programs running weekly through four other super power stations. The programs are given Sundays from KFRC, San Francisco; Mondays from KGW, Portland, Oregon; Tuesdays WBZ, Springfield and Boston; Wednesdays KDKA, Pittsburgh, and Saturdays WGN, Chicago.

Coincidentally with the amalgamation of the Mackey Cable System with the International Telephone Co., Herman P. Miller, chief transmission engineer of the Federal Telgraph Co. of California, has arrived in New York to take charge of reconditioning the huge Sayville transatlantic wireless station. This plant was erected by the Germans in 1912, taken over by the United States Navy during the World War, and abandoned in 1925. It will be one of the most important units in the new system and one of the most powerful marine radio stations in the world. The Federal Telegraph Co., which is affiliated with Kolster Radio, will supply all apparatus for the newly conditioned stations.

WBZ is sending schedules by mail to the Far North announcing special broadcasts to be given next winter for the benefit of the winter-bound in the sub-Polar regions. The schedules will go out in June on supply ships of the Hudson's Bay Company. The broadcasts will be of weekly occurrence, commencing Nov. 17.

At least two manufacturers of radio apparatus have developed loud speakers of tremendous volume capacity. One, which is soon to go on the market, has been produced by the Amplion Corporation following designs of Sir Oliver Lodge. The Bell laboratories have developed a new speaker capable of carrying the human voice a mile, and producing 15 watts of sound power.

No Trespassing!

Mr. Fuller Is Reminded, Most Respectfully, That Ours Is "a Government of Laws and NOT OF MEN"

The committees on Metropolitan Affairs and Street Railways having voted 15-14 to report to the General Court a bill providing for the public ownership of the Boston Elevated Railway system, Governor Fuller shows his dissatisfaction by what can only be interpreted as a threat to keep the lawmakers at work until they produce the Elevated bill HE wants.

In order that the record may be not only complete but fair let us have Mr. Fuller's own words:

"I call that a preliminary report. I don't expect an actual report until about the first of August. I figure that a warm July will bring the members of the Legislature into an attitude of mind a little more in line with the GOVERNOR'S suggestion as outlined in his annual address."

It seems to this newspaper, and we say it with undiminished respect for the high character and distinguished public service of the present Chief Executive, that the Governor framed this comment without due thought. Greatly overburdened, as he has been this year or more, it may be that he has forgotten what the Constitution of Massachusetts has to say to Governors, Senators and Representatives.

Let Article 30 of Part 1 of the Constitution go into the record, too:

"Art. 30—In the government of this commonwealth, the legislative department shall never exercise the executive and judicial powers, or either of them; THE EXECUTIVE SHALL NEVER EXERCISE THE LEGISLATIVE AND JUDICIAL POWERS, OR EITHER OF THEM; the judicial shall never exercise the legislative and executive powers, or either of them; TO THE END IT MAY BE A GOVERNMENT OF LAWS AND NOT OF MEN."

On this occasion, it seems to us, the Governor spoke out of turn. There IS no Elevated bill before him, for veto or approval. The filing of a 15-14 report for a measure providing for a Metropolitan Transit Commission—to be appointed by the Governor just as the present Public Trustees are appointed—is not as encouraging as might be to those who favor public ownership.

But the Executive's implied challenge to the independence of the LEGISLATIVE branch of our State Government is a bigger thing than either public ownership or the Elevated.

It seems to say, "You gentlemen will pass MY Elevated bill—and find out what it reads like, if you can!—or you will pass none."

If this is NOT His Excellency's attitude, we shall be glad to stand corrected.

If it IS his attitude—having in mind its apparently plain violation of the Constitution—all WE care to say to Members of the General Court is that Boston is one of the finest Summer resorts in the world and that Nantasket Beach, what with the boats running and everything, is as good a place to spend what promises to be the "overheated" season as Runnymede Farm, or any other place in New Hampshire.

Our Most Beautiful Park

Charles Sprague Sargent's Monument

The first anniversary of his passing is a fitting time to recall Professor Charles Sprague Sargent's great work for Boston as Director of the Arnold Arboretum.

Sargent was as much a part of the Arboretum as the author is of his book. Its director for 54 years, he made it the largest and finest collection of trees and shrubs in the world.

Great dendrologist, great scientist, great plant author, great American, he transformed a run-down 125-acre farm into a magnificent hardy tree garden of tremendous scientific value, now twice its original size.

Open to the public every day in the year from sunrise to sunset, the Arboretum is visited by thousands. It has contributed to the world's knowledge of shrubs and trees. It is a research laboratory. Gardeners and landscape architects come to it for accurate information.

During Professor Sargent's years of service the original endowment of $100,000 was built up to $1,125,000. The Director served for a nominal salary, MORE than offset by his own donations.

American gardens are immeasurably richer because of what this great man did for them. The Arboretum is his monument.

His regret was that he was leaving the Arboretum's financial problem only partly solved. The $60,000 income from endowment fails to meet the annual expenditure by $20,000.

To maintain and develop the institution as he intended the Charles Sprague Sargent $1,000,000 Memorial Fund has been established. At the end of a year the Committee reports that subscriptions have passed the $800,000 mark.

This means that a great public servant's monument is as yet unfinished. The finest tribute we can pay to lifelong devotion will be to help toward its completion.

Contributions may be sent to Mr. William C. Endicott, 71 Amee Building, Boston.

PERSONAL TOUCH IS BUSINESS ASSET

By DR. FRANK CRANE

AFTER all, there is no asset of business better than the personal touch.

The tendency of business nowadays is to become too mechanical, too soulless. That man is on the surest road to success who injects his personality into his business.

Mr. Chrysler of automobile fame made a speech the other day in which he bewailed the lack of personality in salesmanship, and many others have called attention to the same defect.

Your best advertisement is a satisfied customer.

We all appreciate the same thing in a business deal that editors appreciate in a story. We want the human touch. Anything that can redeem business and make it more human is welcome.

The other day an unusual letter trailed me from a far-away town and arrived at my desk.

It bore the stamp of a hotel where I had stayed for one night some time ago, and read:

"My dear Sir:

"We notice that you were a guest at our hotel recently. We want to thank you for your patronage and trust that you will be with us again on your next visit to ——.

"We want you to feel that we are interested in your welfare while our guest, and that you are an individual and not a number while under our roof."

It was a new experience for me. I had received letters from hotels before, but none like that. I had forgotten all about the hotel, but this personal touch made it stand out in my mind. I noted the name and if I ever go back I will make a point of stopping there.

As I thought this over it occurred to me, as it has many times before, that friendliness is the great overlooked asset in business.

In a big city you can buy anything you want, but you do not know where to turn to find the personal touch.

In Times Square, New York, on State Street in Chicago, near Pershing Square in Los Angeles, the crowds swim past you in an endless stream of people. People who do not know you, do not care about you, give you never a glance.

In every large city there are thousands who come and go and know no one.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MILDRED'S one of those girls who like a lot of Waiting On—and the family strive to please.

Mother brings Mildred her coffee in bed and does her washing and mending. Big Sister lends Mildred her best chemise and her chiffon party stockings. Big Brother shoves her an extra five, come Saturday night—Little Brother runs his short legs off, doing her errands. And Dad's good for a touch almost any time.

Yes, Mildred accepts a lot of favors from the family, as most pretty, 19-year-olds are apt to do. And you might think that all would be bliss in the Jones family. But it isn't. Quite the reverse—the family is in Mildred's Black Book. And she has written me an indignant letter telling me about it.

MILDRED'S FURIOUS BECAUSE THE FAMILY "INSISTS ON BUTTING IN ON HER AFFAIRS."

The best thing the family does, according to Mildred, is to give advice. Morning, noon and night they are at it. It matters not what the occasion—a new hat, a new beau, a new job, the hour she comes home from a party—or doesn't come home —the price she paid for her new pumps, the color of her lipstick, the cut of her bob—on all matters, great and small, the Family remarks.

Mildred's wild! "What business is it of theirs what I do or how I do it?" she cries. "You'd think I was a baby instead of self-supporting. Why can't they leave me alone? Why are they always meddling in my affairs?"

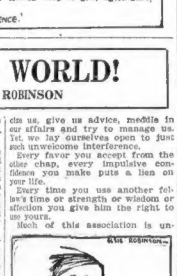
The answer to that is simple. The Family meddles in Mildred's affairs because she has given them a right to meddle. She has made HER affairs THEIR affairs, by acceptine their service. She has mortgaged her independence by being dependent.

That applies to all of us. We're all furious when other people criticize us, give us advice, meddle in our affairs and try to manage us. Yet, we lay ourselves open to just such unwelcome interference.

Every favor you accept from the other chap, every impulsive confidence you make puts a lien on your life.

Every time you use another fellow's time or strength or wisdom or affection you give him the right to use yours.

Much of this association is unavoidable—and much of it is wholesome. We cannot life for ourselves or in ourselves alone in this crowded world. But there are countless entanglements which might be avoided if we'd keep out of debt to other people.



If you don't want other people to do things TO you, don't ask them to do things FOR you.

If you don't like supervision, don't accept favors.

These are simple facts, but it might be well to remember them the next time you're tempted to highhat the family.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

What makes life dreary is the want of motive.
—George Eliot.

When a true genius appears in the world you may know him by this sign, that the dullards are all in confederacy against him.
—Swift.

Whatever enlarges hope will also exalt courage.
—Johnson.

Blood is a juice of rarest quality.
—Goethe.

LONDON, March 22—This is a first visit to London in winter and after a topsy-turvey trip across the choppy channel, the town seemed to droop in the mantle of thin gray. Yet the heartbeat of London has a brisk murmur like an overtone of solidity and is stimulating and marrowy.

London has an imperial stodginess that is more noticeable coming out of easy-going France. It accentuates the difference between a republic and a monarchy. Here you feel it would be less majestic to whoop in the street or "dunk" sinkers in your coffee. Dignity is enthroned.

Even servants appear superior and you sense a faint sneer behind their "Very good, sir." A hotel courier corrected me the first shot. I told him to carry a black valise. "You mean the portmanteau?" he inquired. I was tempted to reply: "I mean the black valise and how are His Majesty's knock-knees?"

Taxis start here at a shilling—some one and six—and are higher for long hauls than in New York. Coming out of Victoria one sees the usual London bubble-bubble—bobbies with comic chin straps on helmets, newspaper vendors encased in billboards with screaming banners, bonneted old Cockney women selling Scotch heather for a ha'penny.

Also crippled service men, their breasts glittering with decorations, selling matches; the curb toy hawkers; the stream of lumbering busses criss-crossed with gaudy ads; the bleary and bloated froth-blowing coves who stagger from pub to pub; spats, monocles and silk hats at noonday.

There is something comfortable about London's sooty-stained buildings so mellow and formidable with age. They give forth an aura of durability typical of Britain. As I passed the parliament buildings Big Ben was booming the noon hour.

I had the driver circle down to the Thames embankment entrance to the Savoy. The benches are still dotted with the hopeless unemployed who seem to be England's eternal economic question marks living on the government "dole." The American is immediately spotted by beggars.

THE English hotel servant cannot understand why the newly arrived traveler does not wish to be refreshed by "a pot of tea." He unlocks your door, deposits your baggage, throws back your curtains and inquires: "Tea, sir?" A refusal sends him away in a sort of silent bewilderment. I really wanted a pitcher of ice water but I'm only in London for a few days. It takes a week for the ice water idea to percolate.

IN THE midst of a bath, the telephone rang and thinking the voice inquiring, "Are you theah?" was a jesting American acquaintance, I replied: "With my hair in a braid." I did not know whether it was a sample of British humor or not, but I was immediately switched over to the hairdressing parlor. The voice, it developed, was that of the telephone operator wanting to know if I wished my mail sent up. My attempt to be merry confused her. She thought I wanted my hair braided, I suppose.

AFTER luncheon at the renowned Simpson's on the Strand I set off for Piccadilly Circus—the Times Square of London—and managed cross it twice safely despite the labanded traffic. There seem to be more Americans here than in Paris and shops are busier. Prices are sky high.

IN Burlington Arcade I dropped into a vest establishment—the "By appointment to H. R. H. the Prince of Wales" sign tricked me—for an evening vest. The clerk insisted I wanted a weskit but I held out with native Missouri stubbornness for a vest. He quoted me the price of each sample for a half dozen lot. His parsimony won, for I bought three, whereas I wanted one. I should have started off just looking for a vest button and let him talk me into a complete vest.

AT DUSK a fog as thick as pea soup sprung up and back of the Savoy a courtyard singer faintly discernible in the mist was chanting a dolorous song to the accompaniment of a wheezy accordion. All that was needed was a mournful hound dog to voice his woe and that body in the Thames would be the boy friend.

Worrying About Niagara

Why Not PROTECT the Cliff

Canada and this country are worried about Niagara. The great cliff of rock over which the river falls, producing power worth millions annually, is gradually wearing away and retreating upstream.

The loss is especially great on the Canadian side, where ninety-five per cent of the water rushes over. There the ledge of rock is said to wear away five feet each year. On the New York side, with erosion less, the retreat is only six inches a year. The rock on the bed of the river is strong, but under it there is a soft sandstone which crumbles as it gets wet and worn. It falls and causes the hard rock above to fall off in great pieces.

All now living will be dead before this condition becomes serious, but the duty of government is to look far ahead.

Why not, to begin with, take the water from the river, from a point well above the Falls, through strong pipes, to power turbines below the Falls, thus diminishing the amount of water that goes over the rock and wears it away.

At night, ALL THE WATER MIGHT BE USED THROUGH UNDERGROUND TUNNELS AND CARRIED DOWN TO THE FOOT OF THE FALLS SO THAT DURING THE HOURS OF DARKNESS THERE WOULD BE NO WEAR AT ALL ON THE STONE CLIFF.

The amount of power used, and perhaps stored, would be gigantically increased.

During the night hours, with the rock uncovered, no water going over, the rocky edge of the Falls could be protected with a covering of hardened steel or other material that would last indefinitely. The problem can be solved if it seems worth while. Ask Mr. Farrell, of the "big steel" company; Mr. Schwab or Henry Ford, who has specialized in hard steel.
